GERMANS REFUSE TO LEAVE FINLAND

Britain Joins U. S. In Snubbing Argentina

NEW MILITARY REGIME FAILS ON RECOGNITION

Washington Hopetful Other Allied Republics Will Follow Suit

ISOLATION ANTICIPATED

Pro-Hun Military Clique Must Make Clean Break With Axis Diplomats

WASHINGTON, March 6—Great Britain, it was learned authoritatively today, has joined the United States in withholding diplomatic recognition from the new Argentine military regime.

Sir David Kelly, the British ambassador in Buenos Aires, has been instructed by the foreign office in London to refrain from entering into official relations with the Argentine military government headed by acting President Edelmiro Farrell.

The British instructions to Sir David are similar to those sent by the state department to American Ambassador Norman Armour in Buenos Aires.

No Official Relations

Furthermore, British Ambassador Lord Halifax has informed Ambassador Adrian Arcobari, the Argentine envoy in Washington, that Sir David's instructions to have no official relations with the new regime are in accord with Britain's decision to support fully the American government's policy in respect to Argentina.

Thus, the American and British governments have taken the first steps to isolate diplomatically the military dictatorship established in Argentina by the extremist army clique.

Official Washington is hopeful that the other Allied American republics will follow suit in refusing.

NO TAXES, CASH FOR EVERYONE IS WOMAN'S IDEA

LOS ANGELES, March 6—Mrs. Nora E. Gover, 53, who earns $6.25 a day as a domestic and lives in a two-room house she built herself, became a candidate today for president of the United States.

She filed papers signifying her candidacy with Registrar of Voters Michael J. Donoghue and now is awaiting certification from the secretary of state.

Her platform includes "no taxes and $30 a month for everybody from birth to death."

She explained she would pay pensions and the cost of running the government by using "some of that stuff stuck in the ground in Kentucky," meaning the nation's gold reserve at Ft. Knox.

FLIES PLANE HOME AFTER MID-AIR COLLISION

THIS BATTERED P-38 fighter, minus one wing and almost torn in two, comes to rest in a wheat field near an American air base in Italy after a miraculous escape by its pilot, Lieut. Thomas Smith of Madero, Cal. Missing a Messerschmitt with the plane's guns, Lieutenant Smith collided with the Nazi plane in mid-air. It crashed in flames, but he managed to fly home safely.

PILOT MAKES LONE BOMB RAID

Sick Officer Refuses To Be Left, Hops Without Crew And Bombs Japs

AN ADVANCED SOLOMONS BASE, March 6—Two remarkable exploits of Americans fighting in the air now may be told.

They concern Lieut. James Cook, of Williamsburg, Iowa, and Charles Merz, of Glendale, N. Y.

Col. "Light Horse" Harry Wilson, famous Army football player who today was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, insisted that a flight surgeon should examine Lieut. Cook because "only a crazy man would attempt Cook's feat."

The flight surgeon made the examination and pronounced Cook perfectly sane, and Lieut.-Gen. Willard F. Harmon, with tongue in cheek, scolded Cook mildly and gave him a furlough.

It happened this way. Cook's squadron, with a sick pilot took off in the last minute with 11 planes instead of 12, leaving Cook behind.

Cook decided to leave too, but he had no crew—no bombardier, no navigator, no engineer, no radio man and no gunners. In the dark he warmed up the engines of his Mitchell bomber, got out of the plane, kicked the props away from the wheels, remounted and started down the runway just as Jap dive-bombers attacked.

He flew under a curtain of his own anti-aircraft fire. The weather was bad but Cook is a great navigator and he managed to reach the target while the other 11 planes with full crews, failed.

He rode through the anti-aircraft wall and set his bombs on Rabaul and tore his course home. Ack ack tore a great hole through the empty co-pilot's seat and if he had a co-pilot he (Continued on Page Two)

SOLDIER VOTE ACCORD DRAWS MURPHY'S FIRE

WASHINGTON, March 6—The pending soldier vote compromise was denounced today by President Philip Murray of the CIO as a "technical absurdity" which would disfranchise servicemen now able to vote.

In a letter to senate and house members, Murray suggested they reject the conference report which approves a predominantly states' right measure. The compromise will be acted on this week.

Murray described the bill as unworkable and declared "its obvious effect would be to harass and bedevil the servicemen to the point where he would give up in despair."

"The issue is a simple one," the CIO chief said. "It's how to place a ballot in the hands of every serviceman and woman. No cloak of 'states rights' can obscure the fact that this latest form of the bill would deny some eleven million Americans one of the great rights for which they are fighting—the right to vote."

PRAVDA DOUBTS FINN SINCERITY IN PEACE MOVE

LONDON, March 6—Pravda, organ of the Communist party in Russia, was quoted today as expressing doubt over "Finnish sincerity" in Russo-Finnish peace negotiations, amid rumors that peace talks would be broken off this week.

The Moscow radio quoted Pravda, in a lengthy article, with the statement that "the position taken by the Finnish press regarding armistice terms cannot fail to cause doubts regarding the sincerity of the hopes of Finnish ruling circles for peace."

In a Stockholm dispatch, the Daily Express declared that Helsinki's delay in accepting Moscow's six-point peace offer was expected to bring a break in negotiations sometime this week.

From two neutral countries, meantime, came reports of Bulgarian moves toward peace, none of them confirmed.

The Daily Telegraph credited a "Swiss source" with reports that the Bulgars have communicated to Moscow suggestions to terms on which they would be prepared to negotiate with the Allies.

The News Chronicle reported from Ankara that a "usually reliable source" asserted that Bulgaria's regents had ordered Premier Boshilov to take "more moderate elements" into the government who might be more acceptable to the Allies. The order was described as amounting to an ultimatum, expiring March 15.

ONLY 150 SIGN FOR DONATIONS TO BLOOD BANK

With 350 donors needed to meet the county quota set up for the fifth visit of the Red Cross Blood bank to Circleville, only 150 persons have volunteered.

Unless more men and women are willing to donate a pint of blood and immediately indicate their intentions the local effort to save lives of fighting men will prove a failure.

Mrs. Hulise Hays is local registrar and persons wishing to volunteer should call her at once at her home.

The Blood Bank unit comes here Thursday on a schedule that originally designated two days for Pickaway county.

WOMEN URGED TO VOTE IN NOVEMBER ELECTION

NEW YORK, March 6—The women of America had a plea today from Mrs. Harold W. Mulligan, president of the National Council of Women of the U. S., to exercise their voting franchise next November.

She said women will "decide the future of the world" when they go to the polls and added that "the coming election will have as great an impact on the entire world as on our own nation."

BILBO CHARGES PROBE POLITICS

Senate Ag Committee Draws Fire For Attack On FDR Aid

WASHINGTON, March 6—Sen. Theodore Bilbo (D) Mass., charged today that the senate agriculture subcommittee which proposed to cite Jonathan W. Daniels, presidential aide, for contempt for refusal to testify is conducting a political investigation.

Although Bilbo is a member of the subcommittee, which is probing charges of a conspiracy to use the Rural Electrification Administration to organize one million farmers in behalf of the New Deal, he has refused to attend the sessions.

"I don't think Daniels is in contempt," Bilbo said. "He has a confidential relationship between himself and the President."

"Furthermore, it would not be in aid of legislation. As a matter of fact this is a political investigation. I am a member of the subcommittee, but I have no patience with it and I have not attended the meetings."

Committee members, however, were jubilant over capitulation of the White House in the controversy over Daniels. With President Roosevelt announcing that Daniels will answer questions put to him, the subcommittee planned to call back the presidential aide Wednesday and question him on charges that he sought to oust Harry Slattery as REA head.

Committee members planned to force the issue with Secretary of Agriculture Wickard as a result of the victory over Daniels. Wickard, whom Slattery said deprived him of authority over REA and gave it to William J. Neal, described by Wickard as a New Dealer, also declined to answer questions dealing with charges of political rule of the organization.

Sen. Ellison D. "Cotton Ed" Smith (D) S. C., committee chairman, was confident that "congressional authority to question witnesses would have triumphed had Daniels continued his refusal to testify."

"The legislative representatives of the people have a right to in-

NEGRO LEADERS ASK OUSTER OF STIMSON, KNOX

CHICAGO, March 6—Negro leaders circulated petitions today calling on congress to institute impeachment proceedings against Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson and Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox.

Edgar G. Brown, director of the National Negro Council, said the movement resulted from what he termed discrimination against the Negro race in both departments.

He quoted the secretary of war as saying Negroes were not competent to master the technique of mechanical tools of war and said Secretary Knox had denied Negro women admission to the WAVES.

Brown said an endeavor would be made to obtain 1,000,000 signatures to the petitions.

COLLETT TENSE AS PROSECUTION PASSES CASE

Farm Laborer Describes Discovering Bodies Of McCoy Family

DEATH CAUSE RELATED

Defense Examines Witnesses Closely On Time Element Pertaining To Alibi

Special to The Herald

WASHINGTON, C. H., March 6—James W. Collett was tense in court here today as witnesses paraded to the stand in support of the state's contention that he is guilty of the murder of the Elmer McCoy family. As the finding of the bodies of McCoy, his wife and daughter, Mildred, last Thanksgiving morning was related Collett leaned forward in his chair eyeing the witnesses intently. Once he left his seat and whispered to his counsel, apparently questioning the time being set forth.

That the defense is pinning its chief hope on an alibi was further indicated by the close cross examination of witnesses who had testified to the time of the finding of the bodies or of early visits to the McCoy farm after the tragedy was revealed.

Sees Murder Victims

Ellis Bishop, a local electrician, was the first witness. He told of visiting the farm with John Dukey Thanksgiving morning, intending to hunt. He told of seeing the bodies of the three murder victims. Cross examination was brief.

Dr. E. H. McDonald, who went to the farm with the sheriff, described the positions of the slain McCoy's and the nature of their gunshot wounds.

Dewey Clayton, who was employed as a farm laborer of McCoy, told of appearing at the farm for work and first seeing the body of Mildred McCoy lying near her car. He ran toward the house and saw Mrs. McCoy's body. He then hurried home and called the sheriff. Clayton said that two cars arrived at the McCoy home Thanksgiving eve, the first about 8:15 and the second 20 minutes later. Under close cross-examination he said that his watch was out of order and that he was guessing as to the time.

To Introduce Alibi

Linton said witnesses would show Collett was in Clinton county.

IMPORTATION OF JAP LABORERS STIRS FARMERS

LEWES, Del., March 6—Nearly 100 farmers in the Rehoboth beach area protested today against the importation of Japanese-American labor by a vegetable grower, as setting they would rather have German or Italian prisoners.

A mass meeting was scheduled by their spokesmen, Roland D. J. Marsh in an effort to balk the plan of Charles Mills who announced he will add 50 more of the workers to the three now working on his 1200 acres.

"The Japanese invasion has already happened," declared Marsh. "If we must have outside labor, let it be German or Italian war prisoners under armed military guard."

ITALIANS PROBING WRECK FATAL TO 500 SOLDIERS

NAPLES, March 6—Officials of the Italian railway today investigated circumstances surrounding the accident in which at least 500 Italians were reported to have died when a freight train was derailed in a tunnel in southern Italy.

A majority of the victims were said to have been asphyxiated by carbon monoxide gas.

Prominent Clergymen Protest Bombing Of Germany's War Centers

NEW YORK, March 6—Twenty-eight prominent clergymen and other national leaders, including the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick and Oswald Garrison Villard, vigorously protested today the "obliteration" bombing of German cities.

"Christian people should be moved to examine themselves concerning their participation in this carnival of death," they declared, "even though they be thousands of miles away."

The appeal for a halt to such bombing was contained in a foreword to "Massacre By Bombing," an article on new bombing methods against German cities. Written by Vera Brittain, English author, it is published in the March issue of Fellowship, pacifist publication.

Prominent Protestant clergymen from widely separated parts of the United States joined in the protest, which expressed grave concern for "what is being done in our name in Europe."

"Conscience Lacking"

"In our time, as never before, war is showing itself in its logical colors," they declared. "In the first World War some shreds of the rules of war were observed to the end. Laws of war are paratocical; but so far as they went they bore witness to the survival of some fragments of a Christian conscience among the combatants."

"But today these fragments are disappearing. The contesting parties pay little heed to the former decencies and chivalries, save among their own comrades."

The protest concluded:

"Call For Repentance"

"Here surely, there is a call for repentance; that we have not acquainted ourselves with the varieties and realities of what is being done in our name in Europe; and surely Christian obligation calls on us to pray incessantly to God that he in his own way may bid the winds and waves of war be still."

GRIPSHOLM ON WAY HOME WITH FREED YANKEES

LISBON, March 6—The exchange liner Gripsholm was enroute back to the United States today with hundreds of American repatriates from Germany and Nazi-occupied Europe.

The Swedish vessel weighed anchor after the last of the repatriates were transferred to the ship from trains which brought them from occupied territories.

Late arrivals numbered almost 400. Among them were a few American-born persons, but the group consisted mainly of central Europeans who had acquired American citizenship in various ways.

The repatriates include nationals of Central and South America returning with United States citizens.

CARS PROMISED FOR 12 MILLION WHEN WAR ENDS

NEW YORK, March 6—Lieut. Gen. William S. Knudsen said today that Americans will want 12 million new automobiles immediately after the war ends.

And what's more, they'll get 'em, the army production boss and former head of General Motors asserted.

After touring Long Island defense plants in support of the current Red Cross fund drive, Knudsen declared:

"There are 54 million Americans now employed at home and abroad. We have got to keep something like that number working after the war and create opportunities for work for the men coming home."

ARMY OFFICER MURDERS THREE

Two Women Among Slain, Five Wounded—Secrecy Fogs Camp Tragedy

RIVERSIDE, Cal., March 6—A Camp Anza Army lieutenant shot and killed three persons, two of them women, and wounded five others with a .45-calibre revolver shortly before midnight last night.

The two women, one of them reported to be the lieutenant's wife, were shot on the Army reservation, police said, where four others were wounded by the officer, identified only as a Lieutenant Swanson.

After the shootings there, police said the officer commandeered a car at the post and with a Negro sergeant drove into suburban Arlingtion where he accosted Ray Schlegel, 24, of Los Angeles, who (Continued on Page Two)

BULLETIN

LONDON, March 6—Giant four-motored American bombers raided the Berlin area in great force today, carrying to the German capital new evidence of mounting Yankee air strength in the battle of Europe.

The German DNB agency admitted that the bulk of the American formations had reached Berlin.

Headquarters of the U. S. Eighth Army Air Force announced merely that the Berlin district had been attacked in strength, but the Nazi agency DNB asserted that one of the greatest air battles of the war developed.

German fighter planes intercepted the waves of American bombers over Holland, DNB asserted, and raging air battles resulted that filled the skies with snarling planes all the way from the Zuider Zee to the Berlin area.

BULLETIN

LONDON, March 6—Germany was reported in a Ruter dispatch from Zurich today to have flatly refused a Finnish request to withdraw Nazi troops from Finland.

The report, quoting usually well-informed diplomatic sources, said discussions between the Germans and Finns in Berlin ended last night with a categorical German refusal.

The Finnish delegation, which sought the withdrawal of the Nazis after Moscow asked internment of the Germans prior to conclusion of an armistice with Finland, was said to have left Berlin at midnight.

By International News Service

Allied lines in the beachhead battle area south of Rome held firm today after American units repulsed a new German attack in the vicinity of Cisterna.

It was a small-scale thrust by a single Nazi battalion, and was put down readily by Yank artillery and mortar fire which scattered the attacking enemy force.

Downpours of rain and leaden skies limited the scope of both ground and air activities but the Allies were able to fly some 250 sorties against the Germans.

Invader aircraft hammered the Nazi coastal positions at Gaeta and Formia which are situated on the Gulf of Gaeta between the beachhead and the main Fifth Army front to the south.

Direct hits were scored on Nazi-occupied buildings, barracks and warehouses. On the outskirts of Formia, it was disclosed, the Monte Nero tunnel has been knocked out of use by bombing.

Fighters and fighter-bombers also struck at the Nazis in the battle area and attacked shipping off the Dalmatian coast.

forces, had lessened appreciably. The air war against Germany was maintained during the night by speedy Royal Air Force Mosquito bombers which battered western Germany. The targets attacked were not identified by the air ministry which said all of the plywood craft that struck in the wake of powerful daylight blows by American heavy and medium bombers against France had returned to base.

The possibility that the Reich was under assault by daylight today was seen in the fact that the Berlin radio and several other transmitters in Nazi-occupied Europe shut down suddenly.

Red Army forces pressed forward in their new offensive in the Ukraine aimed at severing the vital Lwow-Odessa railway, lifeline for Nazi legions in southern Russia.

Nazi Retreat Admitted

The Nazi-occupied Paris, radio admitted that the Germans had been forced to withdraw "at a number of points" after suffering reverses. Radio Paris said that superior Soviet forces, including 14 infantry divisions supported by three tank divisions, were attacking and acknowledged that advanced Russian units had at some places fought their way into the German lines.

The campaign to trap Hitler's Dnieper bend forces and neutralize the Nazi-held Odessa stronghold is directed by famed Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov who halted the Germans almost at the gates of Moscow in 1941 and turned the invader back.

The Russians swept headlong over a 112-mile front and occupied more than 500 localities. Penetration at distances varying from 15 to 31 miles were made into the Nazi positions and 12 German divisions were routed. The push from the Shepetovka region of the Ukraine carried Marshal Zhukov's forces as much as five miles beyond the pre-war Polish frontier.

Japs Hard Hit

Allied forces in the Pacific dealt new, devastating blows against the Japs principally through aerial assaults.

Headquarters of Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell in China announced the destruction of between 40 and 60 Japanese aircraft by twin-engine American Mitchell bombers and Lightning fighters. The Jap craft were bagged in combat and on the ground in China, Thailand and at Hainan Island.

Airmen under command of Gen. Douglas MacArthur loosed more than 300 tons of high explosives on Jap positions over a wide area in the southwest Pacific. The main assault was directed against oil-bombed Rabaul, New Britain island base which was hit with 164 tons of bombs.

The general said his dismounted Texas cavalrymen who went ashore in the Admiralty Islands now are engaged in final mopping up of the battle area on Los Negros, site of the Momote airfield.

A GLIMPSE AT WAR-TIME ENGLAND

Five Winters of War Fail to Shake British

UNDERGROUND WAR PLANT—These British women war workers are making airplane parts in an underground factory, situated in the galleries of an abandoned stone quarry—safe from air attack. Elaborate lighting and ventilating systems make this sunken workshop as comfortable as a plant on the surface.

By BENJAMIN T. SALMON
Chief Engineer,
Ryan Aeronautical Company
Written Especially for
Central Press

SAN DIEGO, Cal.—Two questions most frequently asked of returned visitors to England:

What is life like on the tight little island today? How is the air war going?

Recently I spent several weeks touring England on business for Uncle Sam. I enjoyed an unusual opportunity to observe how the Britishers continue to take the war after more than four years. I learned, too, some illuminating facts about the war in the air, and the possibilities of German capitulation.

About British life: Suppose your gasoline were limited to enough for a single shopping trip each week. A diagram is pasted on your windshield showing the shopping route. A policeman checks your sticker, and if he finds you more than 200 feet off your prescribed route, you are liable to an automatic fine of $1,400, without trial.

Clothing Is Precious

Or, suppose all clothing is rationed. You have 36 coupons a year. A suit snips off 28, a pair of shoes seven, a shirt four to 10. Life would seem far more complicated than in the United States, wouldn't it?

Yet these are the conditions under which the English live. Today they are shabbily dressed, look cold, tired and hungry; but they are cheerful, and as determined as the proverbial British bulldog to get the war over with as soon as possible. They do not waver under bombing or privation. They live in a virtual front-line battleground.

I learned many amazing things during my tour of the English aircraft factories. Some of the most surprising (and most encouraging) things I saw cannot be told.

But I can say that I saw one huge underground aircraft factory with more than two million square feet of floor space, built on several levels of an old salt mine. Imagine the largest war plant in your community buried hundreds of feet underground, and you will get an idea of the size of that English factory.

I saw other airplane parts being built in garages and tiny shops scattered all over England, as part of the dispersal system adopted when German bombers were coming over nightly.

In talking to executives and supervisors in English aircraft factories, I was absolutely dumbfounded at the calmness with which they discussed "high wages" which would be the equivalent of a southern share-cropper's pal in this country.

The average English aircraft worker gets 15 cents to 20 cents an hour. Absolute top wages for skilled mechanics with many years of service, is equivalent to 62 cents an hour in our money. And aircraft is the highest paid industry in England!

PURINA GIVES $525 TO RED CROSS WAR FUND

Red Cross drive organization for the county was completed Monday with acceptance of the chairman-ship of Deercreek township by Miss Carolyn Bochard, Williamsport.

Several Circleville districts have already made final reports and the chairman states that these returns are very favorable. However he says it is impossible now to make any estimate of the final return.

The largest single donation received so far was for $350 from the local Ralston Purina company, and the home office of the same company sent an additional check in the amount of $175.

BUY WAR BONDS

BENJAMIN T. SALMON—He saw and was impressed by the courage and will-to-win of the British.

I can't see how British workers manage to live on what they make. The basic working week is 46 hours, with time-and-a-quarter for the next 10 hours, and time-and-a-half starting at 56 hours. Consequently a worker who takes home $25 a week considers he is doing very well.

These rates were fixed by union contract. They might allow for a comfortable standard of living if prices were low in England—but prices are every bit as high, or higher, than they are here. Cigarettes cost 45 cents. A skimpy dinner in a restaurant is about $3.50. When I tried to buy a bunch of grapes that might have cost 10 cents a pound in normal times here, I found they were selling in London for $5 a pound.

Part of the reason for this is the rigid class system which still endures in England. A gardener's son has no thought of growing up to be anything but a gardener. A cab driver's son would not be accepted in English life as anything but a cab driver. A British working man never expects to own a car, nor to have central heating or inside plumbing in his house.

Complete Job Control

The war is beginning to break this up, however. The government has power to take a worker out of any occupation and put him in any other job where it thinks he will be more useful to the war effort. It can, and does, make him leave his home and take a position in some other part of England. He cannot quit the job assigned to him. Consequently a lot of people are getting a taste of jobs entirely new to them and their ancestors. Another thing that surprised me was the pitifully antiquated methods of building airplanes which many British factories are still using. Rivets are still pounded in with a hammer, by hand. Pneumatic rivet guns, while in use in some places, are not prevalent. Countless other kinds of work which American factory workers always do with machines are still painfully turned out by hand.

With such methods, it is a wonder that the British turn out such good airplanes as they do. Even so, when I got a close look at the workmanship of their aircraft, none of it was better than average by American factory standards. With the man-power shortage at a lot worse in England than it is here, I suppose skilled workers are rarer than six-headed hens.

All of this adds up to a pair of facts: Not only are the British "taking it"; with us, they are dealing punishing blows to the Germans.

As an illuminating anecdote, ponder the amazing landing of six Focke-Wulf 190s at a certain English airfield. Somehow the Germans gave the correct identification signal by radio and light while circling in the darkness. Six landed in rapid succession, and when anti-aircraft guns began erupting flak, two others flew back to Europe. Almost before the six had started, they were popping out, hands raised high overhead.

Motorcycles and jeeps (or peeps, as the British call them) bristling with machine guns swarmed onto the field and surrounded the Germans. Onlookers noticed that the planes were sleek and shiny—unmarked by weather or bullet holes—in fact, brand new.

Six Who Cracked

The pilots walked forward, hands up, eyes squinting in the glare of British searchlights.

"We surrender. We are finished," said the leader in guttural English. The British officer who moved to meet them was bewildered. "What is it all about? What were you trying to do?"

"We merely try to land and surrender," answered the Nazi. "We have flown tonight from Germany, because we have had enough of this war. Ah! We have been flying for four years, and that is too much. We know which way this war is going."

The news was published and caused a mild sensation all over the country. For eight Focke-Wulf 190s to try to surrender en masse was somewhat of a novelty and some indication that the enemy was cracking badly.

But the British and American pilots in England shook their heads. They knew differently.

"Germany will not be beaten for two years yet," an AAF officer told me at a British operational base. "Some of her oldest pilots may be getting discouraged, but that doesn't count for much. Thousands of young flyers are coming up to replace the veterans—and they are good pilots, fighting fools, fanatics who have been brought up since childhood in the Hitler Youth and are glad to die for the Fuehrer."

Another flyer chimed in: "One flight into Germany is enough to convince anybody that the Nazis are still full of fight. They've got a huge 30-mile belt of air bases extending all along the French and Belgian coasts. Whenever any Allied planes start across, the Germans literally blacken the sky with Messerschmitt 109's and Focke-Wulf 190's. Our boys just have to slug their way through, sometimes against odds as high as a hundred planes to one."

NEW MILITARY REGIME FAILS ON RECOGNITION

Washington Hopeful Other Allied Republics Will Follow Suit

Prompted By Chile

The American government's announcement of the virtual suspension of diplomatic relations with Argentina was prompted by word that Chile was taking the position that the question of recognition of the new Argentine military regime was not involved in the situation which has developed in that Latin American republic.

Washington has felt that the question of recognition was definitely involved. The state department takes the position that the pro-fascist military clique in Argentina forced former President Pedro Ramirez out of office and set up a new government. In the hope of avoiding the recognition issue, the Argentine military group claimed that Ramirez delegated his authority to Gen. Farrell.

The state department was striving to get all the Allied American republics to agree on a policy of non-recognition of the new regime when word was received that Chile intended to accept Farrell's contention that there had been no change in the government. Washington then decided to act immediately by announcing that it was not maintaining official relations with the new regime.

However, the way was left open for possible recognition of the Farrell regime at a later date providing that government takes certain measures to cooperate in the defense of the western hemisphere.

Acting Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., said the measures which the new Argentine regime must take include:

1. Internment of all Axis diplomats and agents; 2. Expulsion of all Axis spies; 3. Termination of trade relations with the Axis powers.

quire into any executive agency and to question a cabinet officer or any other official," Smith said.

Some senators, including one of the best known senate constitutional lawyers, backed Smith's view. One senator, who declined to be quoted, said there is no doubt of the congressional power.

A decision of the supreme court in 1927, in which it upheld the right of a senate committee to force Mal Daugherty to testify in an investigation of conduct of the attorney-general's office under his brother, Harry M. Daugherty, was cited.

Daniels, in his letter to Smith, informed the committee shortly after its decision that he would submit to questioning. He expressed belief, however, that a legislative committee still could not force a presidential aide to testify "as to matters which necessarily involve a conversation with the President, and which might possibly affect the public interest."

DOW DECLARES GERMAN CARTEL CHARGE FALSE

WASHINGTON, March 6—William H. Dow, president and son of the founder of the Dow Chemical Co., told the Truman committee today that a justice department charge linking his magnesium firm with a German cartel was "infamous" and unfounded in fact. Defending his company's record in war production before the senate committee, Dow said:

"The Dow Chemical Company has been unfairly treated. It has served the nation in spite of and not because of the government. The magnesium program of the government, and consequently the service of supply to the Allies, was made possible by the foresight of the Dow Chemical Company in having ready the facilities for production when and as the materials were needed."

Dow declared that every act complained of by the justice department "as against the public interest was actually in the public interest."

"If anyone impeded the magnesium program—it was not Dow," he asserted.

The witness testified that in 1942, critical year in magnesium production, Dow produced 84.2 percent of all the magnesium output in the country.

Nine Injured In Auto Crash West of City; Dayton Woman Loses Eye

Nine persons were injured Saturday evening at 8:30 when Dayton and Cincinnati automobiles crashed on Highway 22 five miles west of Circleville during a heavy snow flurry.

George Schrimper, 50, of Cincinnati, driver of one of the cars suffered fractures of both knee caps, crushed ribs and severe bruises and cuts. Mrs. Delbert DeLong, of Dayton, wife of the driver of the second car suffered the loss of her right eye and severe cuts and bruises.

Mrs. Ruth Hannika and Mrs. Ada Cushman, daughters of Mr. Schrimper were seriously bruised and cut about the face and head.

Mrs. Hannika also may have a broken ankle.

Mr. DeLong was cut and bruised, his son, Delbert, age 4, was rendered unconscious for more than an hour by a blow on the head, and his daughter, Patricia, also was bruised.

Charles Glueckert and wife, of Dayton, who were riding with DeLong, also suffered bruises and cuts.

All of the nine injured persons were taken to Berger hospital in the Defenbaugh ambulance. Mr. DeLong, Mr. and Mrs. Glueckert, the DeLong children and Mrs. Cushman all were discharged after treatment. Mrs. DeLong remains in the hospital and Mrs. Schrimper and Mrs. Hannika were taken to Cincinnati Sunday in the Defenbaugh ambulance.

Drivers of both cars disclaimed responsibility for the crash. DeLong said he had stopped to remove snow from his windshield, and Schrimper said that the DeLong car moved across the highway and directly in the path of his car.

Deputy Sheriff Verne Pontious investigated the accident.

OPA DEMANDING INDORSING OF GAS COUPONS

Motorists! Be sure all of your gasoline coupons are endorsed IMMEDIATELY.

The Office of Price Administration is planning a nation-wide spot check of motorists' coupon books during this week.

The enforcement campaign will be conducted by OPA investigators at filling stations, and is another move on the part of the OPA to break up the black market in gasoline.

The gasoline black market in some localities has reached alarming proportions in recent weeks.

The mileage rationing regulations require all motorists to endorse all coupons with the license number and state of registration of the car immediately on receipt of coupons from the rationing board.

Help of filling stations and distributors has also been enlisted by the OPA in the anti-black market campaign. Distributors will screen out all unendorsed and otherwise improper coupons when exchanged by filling stations. In turn, the amount of gallonage represented by the unendorsed and improper coupons will be charged back to the filling stations, which will lose that amount from their inventories.

"Tell Mother not to worry!" "Tell Dad I'm all in one piece!" "Tell my girl I still love her!"

Miss Browne, former women's national golf and tennis champion, was director of Red Cross Canteen Service in the forward areas when her work in Australia-New Guinea was interrupted for a temporary assignment in the States.

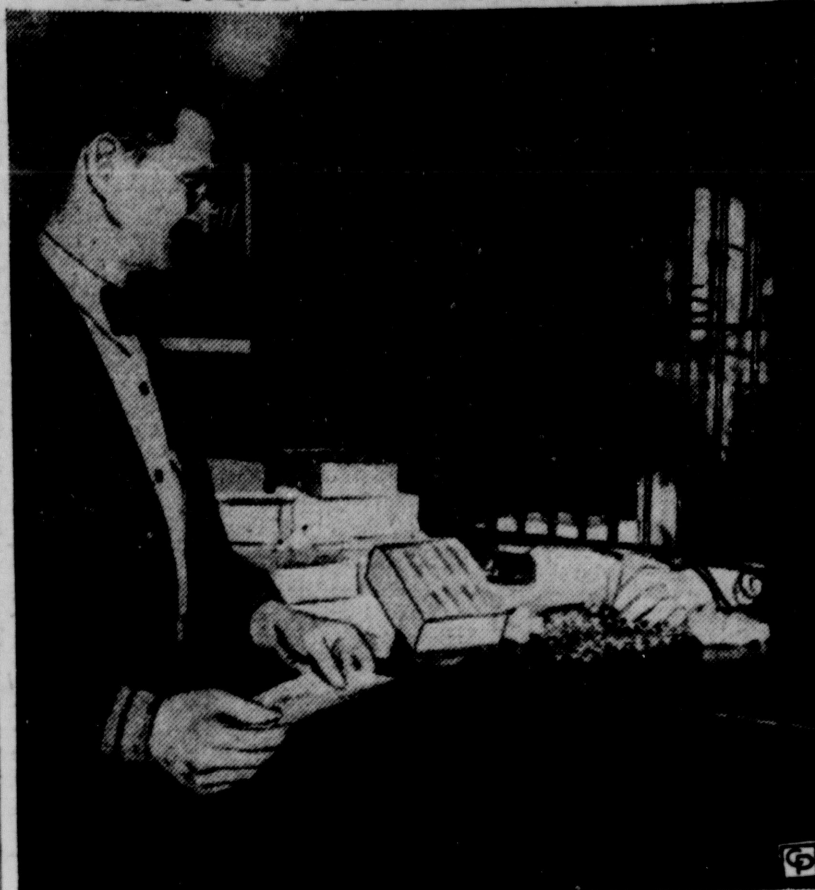

Early in 1944, about 5,000 Red Cross men and women workers were aiding U. S. servicemen's welfare overseas as field directors, assistant field directors, supervisors, administrators, club directors, assistant club directors, program directors, personnel service workers and staff assistants. Their work was supplemented by thousands of volunteers in this country and in the countries where they serve.

Initial Supply of 6,500 Tons of Ag Limestone Available To Farmers

In order to supply the cooperating farmers of Pickaway county with agricultural limestone as provided for in the AAA Food Fights For Freedom Program, the County AAA Committee has contracted with Marble Cliff Quarries of Columbus for 5,000 tons and Sugar Creek Quarries of Washington C. H., for 1,500 tons as an initial supply. These tonnages will be increased as the cooperating farmers place their orders with the committee and as the supply becomes available.

The price at the quarry located at Columbus, is $1.50 per ton.

Under the 1944 farm program, cooperating farmers, whose allowance is $40 or less, can receive the total amount of this allowance in agricultural limestone if they so desire. If the farm allowance is above $40, then the amount of limestone which can be received in lieu of payment, cannot exceed the amount earned by soil building or conserving practices, which includes the application of limestone.

A cooperating Pickaway County farmer can purchase the limestone privately if he so desires and receive payment for applying it to the land at the rate of $2.10 per ton up to the farm allowance.

While it is felt that the county committee will be unable to secure enough limestone to meet the total demand of the farmers of the county, every effort on the part of the committee and the contractors will be made to fill all orders. It would take 1,535,844 tons of limestone applied to the land in Pickaway County to make possible the maximum production of all the soil in the county.

The application of limestone to soil deficient in limestone increases the food value of the crops grown on it as well as the quantity grown. The application of limestone where needed is one of the easiest ways to increase production.

Dewey Downs, a member of the County AAA Committee, has charge of the distribution of the program limestone in the county.

CAREFUL FEEDING KEY TO MEAT, MILK AND EGGS

Reliable reports on feed supplies, which have been gathered by the Farm Bureau Cooperative Association, indicate that livestock feeds are disappearing at such a rapid rate that entire sections of the country may be out of feed before new crops are available.

The report says the uncertain factor in the situation is the extent to which livestock numbers have been liquidated.

This being the condition, the Bureau stresses the necessity of removing low-producing, feed-wasting animals and poultry through orderly culling programs. Also the necessity of careful feeding to prevent waste, and the continued importance of feed conservation measures.

Wartime Report of the Pennsylvania Railroad

SUMMARY OF 97th ANNUAL REPORT which was mailed to stockholders at the end of February. Operating revenues increased $141,298,532 over 1942. Operating expenses increased $109,369,984. Taxes increased $55,826,689, or 44.8% over the previous year. Net income was $85,418,484, a decrease of $16,050,309.

THE YEAR 1943

The war continued to dominate the ever increasing transportation effort. While performance was highly satisfactory from the standpoint of meeting every demand of the war emergency, it could not of necessity be wholly adequate from the standpoint of the character of the service performed, particularly the passenger service. Nevertheless, considering the abnormal conditions that prevailed throughout the year, the results as a whole can be viewed as a creditable achievement. There was a heavy increase in the volume of business handled, the railroad being operated to a greater capacity than ever before.

Notwithstanding decreases in rates, operating revenues increased $141,298,532 due to the greater volume of traffic, both passenger and freight, but this very fact, together with higher costs of material and fuel and increases in wages, resulted in an increase in operating expenses of $109,369,984. At the same time, taxes increased by $55,826,689, or 44.8%, over the previous year.

Despite the fact that the Company in 1943 did the largest business in its history, its Net Income was less than in 1942 by some $16,050,309 because of the substantial increases in operating costs and taxes mentioned above. It seemed wise to maintain the dividend at the same rate as paid in 1942, namely, 5%, or $2.50 per share. Dividends at this rate were accordingly paid in 1943.

THE NATIONAL EMERGENCY

In 1943, the railroads performed a service unequalled in the history of transportation. They were called upon to handle a volume of freight and passenger traffic exceeding that of the record year 1942.

The ability of the railroads to handle this record volume of traffic was due to further improvements in facilities and operating methods; to splendid cooperation between the railroads, the shippers and employees, the Army and Navy, and other agencies of Government, and to the continued helpful attitude of the Office of Defense Transportation.

The railroads look to the future with the conviction that they will keep in the forefront of industrial progress, and will meet successfully the competition to be expected. They are convinced that no other form of transportation can supplant the railroads unless unintelligent regulation, excessive subsidization of competitors or inequitable taxes shall so overburden them as to deprive them of equality of opportunity, an essential in any sound economic order.

TAXES

The railroads, always a heavily taxed industry, are accustomed to bearing their full share of the cost of government, and well realize that any excessive profits derived from the war effort should be subject to taxation as are the excess profits of any other industry; but the determination of what profits are excessive should not ignore the plain facts respecting the railroad industry, its position and needs.

During the last several decades, the processes of regulation have made it necessary for most of the financing by the railroads to be done with borrowed money for which they are not given adequate credit in calculating return on investment. Again, the railroads have not been, like other industries, in a position to carry adequate charges for depreciation and obsolescence-amortization, and income which should properly be charged off for these purposes is subject to the excess profits tax. Thus, the railroads find a large part of what is, in fact, no more than a reasonable return on their investment treated as excess profits and subjected to an enormous excess profits tax, where in fact no excess profits exist.

The effect on the railroads of the so-called excess profits tax is not only to deprive them of a reasonable return on their investment, but to prevent them from laying aside out of current earnings the reserves needed for future expenditures which are being made inevitable by wartime conditions and the pressure of wartime traffic.

Sound public policy not only justifies but should require the accumulation by the railroads of large post-war reserves to meet post-war changes in transportation practices and methods, but the tax policy of the Government is heading them along the same unfortunate path as at the close of the last war, when the railroads had to borrow large sums of money and go into debt to revamp their properties.

Today, while the railroads are doing the largest business in their history, it would be advantageous not only to them, but also to the public at large and to railroad employees as a whole, if the tax laws were amended so as to permit the creation now of the reserves needed for post-war rehabilitation, with resulting greater employment in the post-war period.

FUNDED DEBT

The Pennsylvania Railroad System has retired or purchased during the year debt in the hands of the public amounting to $45,354,220, which, after allowing for the issuance of $12,240,000 Equipment Trust Obligations, makes a net reduction in debt of System Companies in the hands of the public of $33,114,220.

During the last five years, there has been a net reduction of $124,000,000 in the debt of the System in the hands of the public.

STOCKHOLDERS

The Capital Stock of the Company at the close of the year was owned by 209,618 stockholders, an increase of 3,633 compared with December 31, 1942, with an average holding of 62.8 shares.

The management is always appreciative of the cooperation extended by security holders, the public and employees. It recognizes its responsibility to keep the stockholders, the employees and the public generally, informed as to the Company's business, service, finances and other important matters, which is done through advertising in newspapers and magazines, in announcements to the press and in the dissemination of information in other forms, as well as in the annual report.

THE EMPLOYEES

The Board takes pleasure in acknowledging the continued efficiency and loyalty of the employees, which made possible the handling of a volume of traffic exceeding that of any year in the history of the Company.

44,448 employees of the System have entered the Armed Forces, serving in every part of the world, of whom 123 have made the supreme sacrifice.

Many thousands of new employees have had to be trained to take their places, including 21,730 women who are now in the railroad service. Never were the demands upon the employees so great; never have they met the burden more efficiently and more courageously.

M. W. CLEMENT, President.

A PROFITABLE ROW

WASHINGTON's senatorial revolt has come and gone, leaving our system of government not weaker, but stronger. The executive branch has lost some power and the legislative branch has gained. There is nothing like a revolution, of course; our government has not survived the strains and stresses of a century and a half to change form or principle now. Even the wrenches of our greatest war will not do that. But there has been, in an astonishingly short time, a shaking down and tightening up of governmental principles and procedures that have jerked us out of a dangerous situation, cleared the air and set us on the beaten path again.

The President, in our constitutional system, has great authority, and there is always danger of its being abused by disregard of the legislative branch. The danger is naturally most evident in war time, when the President as commander-in-chief has abnormal powers. There are two checks upon such power — congress and the supreme court. In this case, fortunately, there was no need of resorting to the court. Congress, which has the "power of the purse," rose as one man when the executive unwisely ventured to curtail legislative authority.

So a crisis passed. It may be a long time now before another chief executive undertakes to dictate to congress so boldly on fiscal matters. Presumably there will be more cooperation between the executive and legislative branches.

WHERE TO GO NEXT

THE repeated bombing of Berlin and the destruction of so many public buildings must make the Nazis wonder where to house their government.

Almost any other large city will be nearer to the American and British bombers. Further away from them is Konigsberg, where the Prussian government actually did move from Berlin in the days of Napoleon; but that is dangerously near the Russian border.

There is no bomb-proof retreat for the Nazi government anywhere.

Maybe the question what to do with the Japanese will solve itself. Just let them follow the national custom by which anyone suffering humiliation kills himself. We can supply the humiliation.

Americans are sometimes accused of being too fond of money. This is a libel. What brought would-be waitresses to a Los Angeles restaurant was not the advertisement of high wages, but the sign, "Free Bobby-Pins."

F. D. R.-Barkley Split One Washington Tiffs Annoying Of Many Capital Squabbles To Civilians, Servicemen

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—Everybody in this town who can thump a few words on a typewriter has been holding forth on the split between Democratic Senate Leader Alben Barkley and his president. Everybody who cannot type has been talking out loud about the rebellion of the Senate and what it means now, next election day and forever more.

So I should like to speak my own thoughts on this fascinating subject. Perhaps my thoughts are inspired by my woman's point of view. In fact, I am sure they are. But I now present them—undiluted. And hope that you and I will remain friends thereafter.

To me the entire episode is far from a pretty spectacle. It presents Washington to this country and the rest of the world as a squabbling capital.

"Some more politicians fighting among themselves," most of the people who get the long view of Washington are saying. "Why don't they use their strength on winning the war? What's a 'veto' anyhow when our men are fighting and dying? Why don't the politicians get on with the war?"

"Who cares whether the president in his peacemaking letter said 'Dear Alben' or whether the senator said he'd always love the president the same? What we want to hear is that the war is being shortened by the planning Washington is putting into the fight. We don't care a hoot if a couple of office holders are getting touchy as election day comes on. We want to know when there is a chance of our boys coming back home and what is being done to get them on their homeward way."

If the people out in the country feel this way about the break between the president and the senator from Kentucky what do the men in the battle lines and camps think of these hysterical goings on in their capital? I asked a diplomat who had just returned from Italy what the soldiers there were thinking about.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

WILLKIE CAUSES REVOLT

WASHINGTON — It didn't leak out but Wendell Willkie had a revolt among his supporters over his recent statement supporting Roosevelt and going him one better on higher taxes. The issue was between Willkie's publicity right bower, Russell Davenport, former editor of Fortune magazine, and Willkie's fiscal right bower, John Hanes, former undersecretary of the treasury for FDR.

Hanes, whose father helped found the Reynolds tobacco empire and who is one of the most successful brokers in Wall street, has been devoting his time and money helping to nominate Willkie. But Hanes is a low-tax man. As undersecretary of the treasury, he fought higher taxes and, in the end, resigned. Last year, he even had a session with treasury expert Randolph Paul in which he virtually laid down an ultimatum that the Ruml plan would have to be adopted.

With this background, it is easy to understand how Willkie's higher-tax statement was about as easy for Hanes to swallow as a rattlesnake.

In making his decision, Willkie had Hanes on one side and Russell Davenport on the other. Davenport had resigned from Fortune to devote all his time to Willkie's campaign. Also he had prepared a careful study on taxes showing how the cost of the war was being postponed and would fall on the shoulders of the men now fighting the war.

Hanes, on the other hand, argued that business couldn't stand higher taxes now. He virtually served warning on Willkie that he would withdraw his support if Willkie came out for higher taxes.

Willkie's reply was: "I'll be damned if I'm going to let those kids pay for this war."

And he issued the statement.

Note—Don't be surprised if you see Johnny Hanes bowing out of the Willkie picture soon.

JESSE JONES DENIES

Exactly one year ago this month, Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones sent a letter to all Washington Merry-Go-Round subscribers denying the Shipshaw aluminum deal in Canada.

By this deal, the Merry-Go-Round reported, Jones would enable the Aluminum Corporation to build a giant power project in the wilds of Quebec rivaling Boulder Dam. There, it would be beyond U. S. control, would escape U. S. taxes, and if the war ended before 1946, the corporation would not have to pay back the money loaned by Jesse, much of it without interest.

"All of these statements," Jesse Jones said in his letter to editors, "are false." He demanded that editors publish his letter as a refutation of this column.

Now, one year later, comes the Truman committee with a comprehensive report regarding that same Shipshaw aluminum project in Canada. Here is what the Truman committee says, compared with the Merry-Go-Round statements one year ago, then so vigorously denied by Jesse Jones:

Merry-Go-Round: "Jesse is loaning the Aluminum Corporation $68,500,000 of U. S. government cash and charging no interest."

A Model is Murdered ~ BABS LEE

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

Argus grinned. He paused for a brief instant in front of Cynthia Lane's dressing room. Then he shrugged and sauntered toward the ballroom. He edged his way through a group of women and spoke to the captain. The latter bowed and led Argus to his table near the runway.

"Can one get any liquid refreshments at this little affair?" Argus asked.

"Certainly, sir. But there will be a charge, sir."

"Bring me a double Scotch," Argus said. Then added: "Wait a second." He had caught sight of a blonde girl sitting alone at a table directly opposite. It was Dorry.

"On second thought," Argus said, "bring my drink to Table 19."

"Yes, sir,"

Argus got up and crossed to where Dorry was sitting. "Hello," he said. "Mind if I sit down?"

"Why, Mr. Steele? What are you doing here?" Dorry asked, smiling at him. "Do sit down." Her appearance had changed materially since the night before. She was wearing hardly any make-up and her gold hair was combed into a smooth bob under a smart black hat. There were dark rings under her eyes, as though she hadn't slept well, and she was very pale.

"Will you have a drink?" Argus suggested.

"No. No, thanks. I'm meeting some friends in a little while and we're going to have tea."

"Is Bill with you?" Argus asked, sliding his long legs under the table.

"No," Argus thought she looked troubled. Dorry's eyes avoided his.

"You know," said Argus, "I never did know your last name."

Dorry hesitated a second. "I'm Bill's wife," she announced.

"Oh!" Argus pursed his lips and regarded her reflectively. "When did that happen?"

"About a week ago. We've been lucky. Only a few people know. We didn't want a lot of reporters around and all."

"Bill's father know?"

"Yes. He wanted us to get married."

"Thought maybe marriage'd straighten Bill out, eh?" Argus asked. Dorry nodded.

"Well," commented Argus, "that should be a life's work."

"I don't mind," said Dorry. "I know Bill's been a little wild, but he's a good kid really. He's just had too much money and his father's been too busy to look after him. His mother died when Bill was very young." The waiter brought Argus' drink.

"Sure you won't change your mind?" Argus asked. Dorry shook her head. "How's this marriage working out?"

"He was getting better, until—"

"Until he got mixed up with Syria Verne?" Argus queried. "By the way, do you have a license to carry a gun?" Dorry looked paler than ever.

"What do you mean?"

"Last night," said the detective, "you had a gun. Ellen Curtis saw it when it fell out of your bag."

"Oh, that . . ." faltered Dorry, endeavoring to appear unconcerned.

"What were you doing with it?"

"Mr. Steele, will you tell me just why I should answer that?"

"I just think it might be a good idea," said Argus. She looked at him warily for several seconds.

"Very well, I'll tell you. I bought that gun. I thought maybe Bill might get into trouble. He has a temper when he's drinking and—"

"Where is the gun now?" Argus asked.

"I threw it away."

"Where?"

"In a trash can on Third Avenue. I don't remember what street."

"Why?" Argus pressed. "Did you think you wouldn't need it any more?"

"Yes, yes, that was it," Dorry replied. She was breathing faster.

"Where did you go after you left the Penguin Club last night?"

"I don't remember exactly. I know I got home—Bill took me home," she ended abruptly. "I don't know why you should be asking—"

"To get back to that gun you threw away—where did you buy it?"

"Why—from—from—"

"Careful. You know I can check on it," Argus warned. "You found that gun in your husband's possession, didn't you? And you were worried, because he drank so much, that he might accidentally shoot some one, weren't you?"

Dorry hung her head. "No," she said.

"Where are you and Bill living?" Argus went on. "With his father?"

"No. We have our own apartment."

"Why were you wearing all that war paint last night? You look much better au naturel."

"I was trying to be a glamour girl, I guess," Dorry said wistfully. "I'm sort of colorless and—"

"How did you meet Bill?"

"I was studying dancing. I met Bill about three months ago. Her whole face brightened as she mentioned his name.

"Bill was phoning Syria Verne last night, wasn't he?" Argus asked. He looked down at his drink. Dorry didn't reply. He looked up at her questioning. She was staring at the entrance to the ballroom.

"My friends are coming," she said. Argus saw two middle-aged women approaching. "They used to teach me piano, in Ohio," Dorry explained.

"Well, I guess I'll be leaving," said Argus rising. "See you later, Dorry. You may be able to help me. S'long." He returned to his own table.

Argus looked around the room. It was packed. Blue smoke floated ceilingward like a cloud of gossip. A group of men were sitting together facing the stage at the end of the runway. Argus recognized both Sturgis and Flagg. He wondered why the show didn't begin. Presently the lights dimmed. The orchestra struck up a soft dance tune. There was a lull in the noise. A hush fell over the gathering. A baby spot was centered on the stage. A youngish woman, smartly tailored, stepped from behind the curtains. She walked up to the microphone. There was a faint ripple of applause. The woman bowed and then held up her hand for silence.

"This afternoon," she began in a pleasant voice, "we take great pleasure in presenting to you the latest creations from our leading American couturiers. The gentlemen at the end of the runway," another spot turned on them, "are among the foremost artists and illustrators." There was polite applause. "These gentlemen will be our judges this afternoon in selecting the most attractive ensemble in each of four types of clothes. At the end of the show, Mr. Roger Flagg, one of New York's famous model-agents, will tell you why each costume was selected as being the best, in the opinion of the judges. And now on with the show!"

A large spotlight was trained directly on the stage.

The curtains parted to show a tableau of four girls in bathing suits bouncing a huge rubber ball back and forth against a setting of palm trees and Florida scenery. Ellen was in the group. She was wearing an abbreviated blue beach costume.

One by one the girls left the stage and marched down the runway. They paused in front of the judges and proudest so as to present every aspect of their costumes. As Ellen passed Argus, she winked. Ellen certainly held her own with any of the models in the dressing room. Argus decided, when it came to pert and savvy figures. She moved on. Another model took her place. She was a voluptuous brunette wearing a one-piece suit of red sequins that fit her contours better than the proverbial glove.

After the bathing-suit parade came the spring prints and street clothes. Argus' interest abated somewhat. He looked down at his drink and when he raised his eyes again, he was staring into Cynthia Lane's face. She looked scared. She was standing just over him on the runway and as she turned she tossed a crumpled ball of paper on his table. Then she moved away.

Quickly Argus opened the folded wad. A message was scrawled on it in pencil:

Come to my dressing room, 304, during intermission. Don't let any one know. Urgent.

Cynthia Lane

The curtain came down. Argus applauded with the others. Then he sauntered casually from the ballroom. He encountered Ellen on the way to Cynthia's dressing room.

Today's Horoscope
With your temperament, don't marry hastily if this is your birthday. An uncongenial mate would make your married life very unhappy. You have a strong will, are self-reliant and inclined to analyze everything. You are fond of sports and excitement; enjoy having many people around you, and like making new acquaintances. During the next year elders in influential positions will aid you financially. New and novel businesses promise success, but avert disagreements with employers. Safeguard your health. Born on this date a child will exhibit much natural dignity and desire to help others, but overstrain will need to be guarded against.

Uneven Heart Beats Not Danger Signal

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

THE HEART is the hero of our physiological household—a strong, reliable, burden bearer, responsible, responsive to demands—and, above all, the ultimate virtue—usually silent. The stomach is for ever yelping its head off about the work you give it; the brain is forever mislaying its tools, but the heart is Old Man River.

Whenever it drops its uncompromising role and begins to knock on the door of consciousness and demand notice, the effect is so startling that we rush immediately to the conclusion that something very dire must be at hand.

Heart Skips Beats
"Could you give me some information about a heart ailment I have of late. It seems to skip beats. It beats some beats and then some beats are stronger than others. I am 69 years old," writes a correspondent.

Yes, I can give you some information about that. Your whole letter is a diagnosis. You are 59 years old and you have become conscious of your heart beating. It seems to be irregular. It is. You have extrasystoles—the palpitation of middle age. Half of the human race between the ages of 40 and 60 experience it. And there is nothing sinister to it, frightening though it is at first. In fact it is a sort of guarantee of long life. It means your heart is still irritable and lively.

Doctors did not always know about the harmlessness of this form of palpitation. It was Dr. James Mackenzie, the general practitioner from the North of England, who came down to London about 1910 and taught the specialists about this and many other things.

The specialists used to take a very grave view of this disorder. Mackenzie tells a dramatic story of an old man who consulted him. When he was much younger, at the beginning of a promising career, he began to notice his heart skipping. He consulted a heart specialist. He was just ready to expand into a new business enterprise which would sweep him on to great success, but involved a good deal of traveling and residence for nine years in Australia.

Specialist's Advice
The specialist advised against going on with it. He gave him only a few years of life. He ordered a quiet life in the country. The man renounced his ambitions, settled quietly in the country to await death. He was still awaiting it twenty-five years later, was still in vigorous health and still had his extrasystoles.

Misinformation about them can, you see, have serious consequences. In this case it ruined a man's life. James Mackenzie, as I said, proved that they were harmless by his records—records of the lives of his patients, whom he had observed with these skipping hearts over a period of twenty or thirty years. It showed the advantage of practicing medicine in a small community where you know everyone and can follow their fortunes.

Premature beats is probably a better name for the condition than either skipped beats or extrasystoles. The extra beat comes in ahead of time—prematurely. And then, because the heart has temporarily used up its energy by the extra beat, there is a long pause and then the heart gives a tremendous beat and that is what many people feel.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
S. M. W.:—A. Says it is essential to have orange juice daily. B. says no, or God would have oranges growing all over the world, also she didn't eat oranges when she was young, except maybe one every two or three years.

Answer: The necessary essential food element abundantly contained in oranges is Vitamin C, but you get it in many other foods—such as apples, string beans, raw cabbage, sauerkraut, celery, lemons, parsley, tomatoes, raw and canned, raw turnips, meat, spinach, peppers and strawberries.

K. W.:—Is excessive smoking a cause of tuberculosis?
Answer: No. Tuberculosis practically always starts in childhood. The person with a hidden tuberculosis is nervous and that makes him smoke a great deal, and hence the popular belief has become established.

M. S.:—A few months ago my brother died of aluminum poisoning caused by an aluminum pot which had been left with something cooking causing intensely thick smoke. Another person, exposed at the same time, regained consciousness, but has lost his memory. How often does aluminum do this?

Answer: A reputable textbook on toxicology states that aluminum does not cause poisoning. Patients with stomach ulcer take large quantities without any symptoms. Perhaps it was carbon monoxide or some other gas that caused the accident described.

ARMY GATHERS INITIAL MAJOR CROWN IN TRACK

NEW YORK, March 6—Army has its first major track crown today after winning the team title in the IC4A games Saturday night before a disappointing crowd of 10,000 at Madison Square Garden. The Cadets went into the meet as co-favorites with Navy, but kept the midshipmen behind them from the very beginning of the meet.

As a special feature in the IC4A circus, Gil Dodds, of Boston, made his fifth attempt of the season to break the indoor mile record of 4:07.4 but turned in the time of 4:10.2 after being lured into running a bad race by Bill Hulse of the New York A. C.

Hulse sprang into the lead and kept it for three-quarters of the distance as Dodds was forced to challenge him no less than six times before finally taking over the lead. Gil finally strode past the hard-driving Hulse and, once Gil took over, Hulse dropped out of the running. By that time, however, Hulse had nearly exhausted the grimly-striding Dodds, and Gil ran the last quarter on courage alone, fighting his own weariness to the tape.

If they did nothing else for the fans, the IC4A games showed the public the difference between big league runners and second-rate performers. While Dodds covered his mile in 4:10.2—a distinct disappointment to the fans—Don Burnham, of Dartmouth, defended his title in the regular mile run with a victory in 4:20.2. The champ was closely pursued right up to the last lap by Rudy Simms, of New York university, who finally faded back ten yards at the finish, but placed second. Ray Zoellner, of Rochester, was third in the IC4A mile.

Eddie Conwell, NYU's star sprinter and the only other defending titlist in the entire meet, won the 60-yard dash in 6.3 seconds. In winning the meet, army piled up a total of 47 points, just one behind the record total hung up by NYU when the Violets won the meet last year. The cadets tallied in nine of the first eleven events and scored 25 percent of their points in the pole vault alone.

JUG WALKS AWAY WITH GULFPORT TOURNEY TITLE

GULFPORT, Miss., March 6—Harold "Jug" McSpaden of Philadelphia headed for new worlds to conquer today after winning the $6,000 Gulfport golf tournament with surprising ease, six strokes ahead of his nearest rival, Sammy Byrd of Detroit.

McSpaden's final fourth-round effort was a 68, 3 under par, for a 72-hole card of 70-68-70-68—276, which was 8 under par for the course.

Byrd's 282 total was compiled from 143 for his first two rounds to which he added a 69 and a 70. Byron Nelson of Toledo, who has been up in the money with McSpaden and Byrd in recent tournaments, made good again, hauling in one stroke behind Sammy with a 283 total for third place.

Other leaders were Toney Penna of Dayton, O., 284; Johnny Revolta of Evanston, Ill., 286; Leonard Dodson of Kansas City, 288; Freddie Haas, Jr., of New Orleans, an amateur, 288; Craig Wood of Mamaroneck, N. Y., 289, and Jimmy Hines of Amsterdam, N. Y., and Elmer Reed of Atlanta, Ga., each with 290.

IVES ONLY 18, BUT LEADS BIG TEN AS SCORER

CHICAGO, March 6—An Iowa university freshman who won't be 18 until next month ranked first in the Big Ten conference today among the individual basketball scorers.

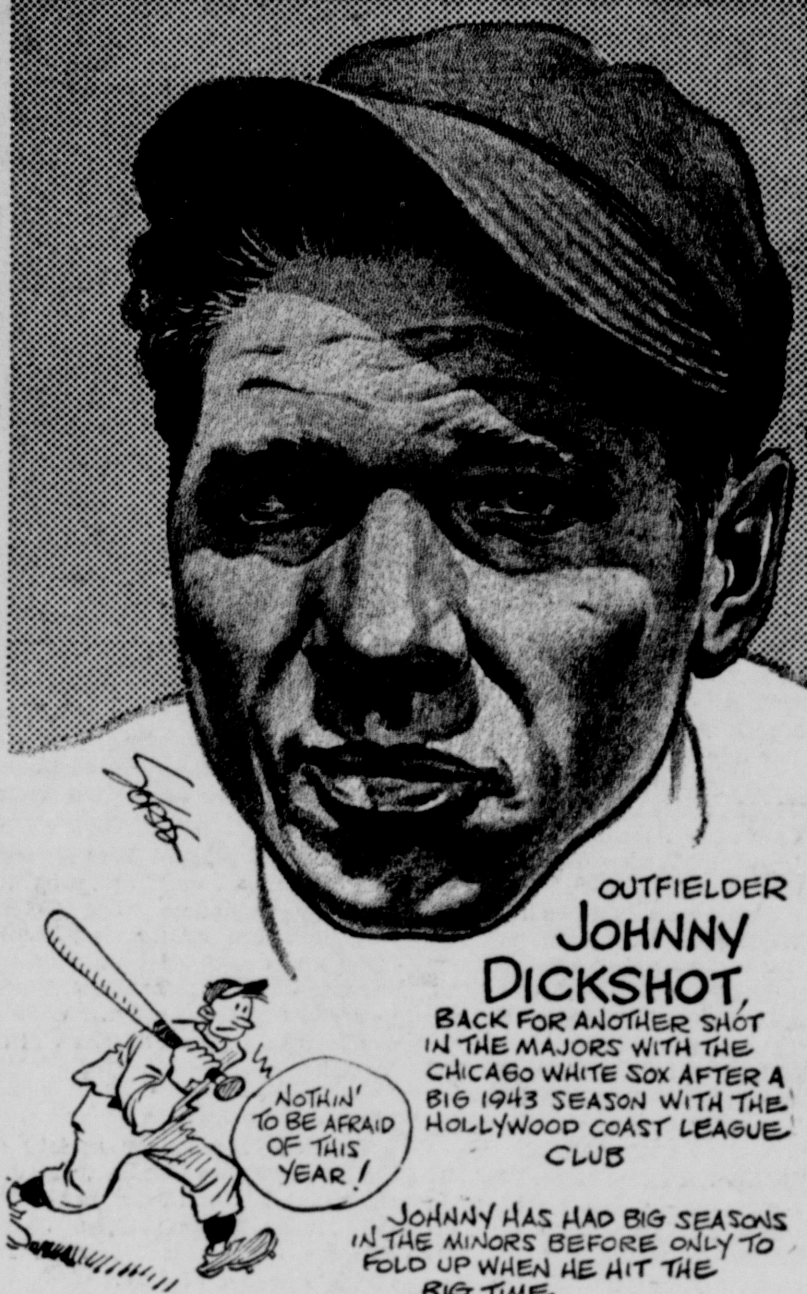

He is Dick Ives who came out of high school at Diagonal, Ia., last year and in the 12 games of the conference season just ended ran up a total of 208 points in 89 field goals and 30 free throws. His average was 17.33 a game.

Tied for second place in the season's scoring were Ives' teammate, Dave Danner, also a freshman, and Ray Patterson of Wisconsin. They scored 193 points each.

Ives' big night was February 5 when against the weak Chicago Maroons he whipped in 19 field goals and 5 free throws for 43 points, a Big Ten record for individual scoring in a single game. The game score—103 to 31—also was a record.

Two Ohio State stars finished in the fourth and fifth spots, Arnold Risen with 174 points and Don Grate with 172.

Last Minute Basket By Purple Crowns Buckeyes As Big Ten Champions

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE
The Ohio State Buckeyes reigned undisputed basketball champions of the Big Ten conference today only by grace of a last-minute basket which gave Northwestern a 42 to 41 victory over Iowa and dashed Hawkeye hopes for a share in the title.

The climactic contest, one of a weekend doubleheader, was played Saturday night at Iowa City. The Iowans were leading by one point in the closing minutes of the game, and stalling to hold their advantage, when the Wildcats took the ball on the rebound.

Wildcat Forward Duane Sickels slipped through the Hawkeye defense and tossed in an easy shot which gave his team a split in the two-game series. Iowa took the

Friday night game 45 to 39 and needed the season's final contest for its first share in a title in 18 years.

While Iowa was dropping this game, Wisconsin was winning in a walk from the Chicago Maroons on the Midway, 74 to 46, and going into a tie with the Hawkeyes for second place.

Dispirited Purdue, which appeared title-bound the first half of the season, took an unexpected 51 to 45 beating at Bloomington from the lowly Indiana Hoosiers and wound up in a fourth-place tie with the troublesome Northwestern Wildcats who previously had knocked Purdue out of a chance to tie for the title.

Illinois, playing at home, moved into a tie with Michigan for sixth place by its 53 to 27 victory over Minnesota with 5 games won and 7 lost. In spite of their indifferent showing in the conference, the Illini have conquered some of the country's highest ranking teams, De Paul and Great Lakes among them.

Ohio State, having closed its season "way back on February 19 at the top of the standings with 10 won and 2 lost, did not play over the weekend and had only to wait for Northwestern to topple Iowa to be certain it would have to share the title with no other team.

Final standings:

Ohio State	W.	L.	Pts.	O.P.	Pct.
Iowa	9	3	604	514	.750
Wisconsin	9	3	603	497	.750
Purdue	8	4	614	485	.667
Northwestern	8	4	606	487	.667
Michigan	5	7	573	575	.417
Illinois	5	7	568	533	.417
Indiana	5	7	522	568	.417

No new soldier is allowed to have hair longer than one inch, the center said.

Dick Messick Nets Eight Buckets, Sparking Quint To Victory

Ashville's basketballers registered their 22nd consecutive win Saturday when they downed Plain City by a count of 41 to 32 in the Central district Class B tournament in Westerville. Ashville is one of the three undefeated Class B teams in the state and is among the eight survivors of grueling play in the district so far.

When play is resumed Thursday night at Westerville Ashville will meet Marysville, Pleasant township will be opposed by Claridon, Worthington and Newark St. Francis will tangle and Grove City will meet Utica.

Only four teams remain in the central district Class A tourney at Delaware and semi-finals scheduled for Friday night will pit Columbus South against Columbus Aquinas and undefeated Newark will play Columbus North.

Plain City played scrappy ball against Ashville, but was unable to keep up the terrific pace set by the Pickaway county boys.

SINGLETON AND LAKE

If you think that the comic difficulties experienced by those two Thursday night zanyes, Bud Abbott and roly-poly Lou Costello, are something, wait until they get all tangled up with Blondie and Dagwood Bumstead who will pay them a visit on their weekly broadcast of Thursday 9 p. m., over NBC.

The Bumsteads, popular comic strip characters, brought to life by Penny Singleton and Arthur Lake, will be given yeoman support in the laugh department by such capable Abbott and Costello cast regulars as Elvia Allman, Ken Niles, Mel Blanc and Billy Gray. Connie Haines will serve up the vocals, accompanied by Freddie Rich's orchestra.

NORTHS REFUSE CASE

A woman comes to "Mr. and Mrs. North" asks them to protect her husband, who has been threatened with death, and "The Norths Refuse a Case," on Wednesday at 7 p. m. When the husband comes in and tells them to disregard his wife's pleas, the Norths suddenly take an interest in the case, and that interest is intensified when the man topples over dead in their apartment. Then the wife denies ever having seen the Norths before, and they find themselves in the middle of a first-class mystery. Joseph Curtin and Alice Frost play the title roles.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

MUST TAKE SOME OUT VULNERABILITY is the guide to taking out some business doubles, or leaving them in. If the opponent is vulnerable and you are not, it is better to leave the double in and beat him a couple of tricks than to make a game of your own. But if he is not vulnerable, you would have to defeat him four tricks to score more than the value of a vulnerable game for your own side. Do some estimating before deciding to leave in a business double. Don't merely pass, as the cartoonists seem to advise.

Bidding actually done on this rubber bridge deal is shown in the No. 1 sequence, where North's business double was left in by South. Gingerly defense enabled the defenders to beat the contract two tricks, worth only 300 points to them. Carelessness on their part could have enabled West to limit his losses to down one, if they ever let him get into the dummy to use his diamond K for a discard. As it was, they scored three tricks in spades, two in hearts, one in diamonds and two in clubs.

North gave South a lesson on leaving in doubles, after the play was over. He insisted South should have taken out the double, in view of the vulnerability and the fact that a slam was in sight. No slam could have been made, but a game could have been made with probably two extra tricks, depending on how the play went. The game could have been bid easily, by the method shown in the second sequence, after North showed his great strength by ability to make a business double at the range of a one bid.

Counting a non-vulnerable game as roughly worth a bit over 400 points and a vulnerable one as worth something over 600, you can gauge how big a set must be to be more advisable, when your opponents are vulnerable and when they are not vulnerable.

Circleville Soldier Writes of Visit To Historic Places

GEORGE MYERS TELLS OF TRIP TO BETHLEHEM

Visits Jerusalem, Bagdad And Cairo, Plays Baseball At Iraq College

MEETS KING'S RADIO MEN

Church Of Holy Sepulcher Most Interesting Sight, Sergeant Says

Pickaway county's representation in far corners of the world was never what it is today. From the poles to the equator in both Hemispheres, in practically every land not held by the Axis powers, on all of the seven seas, local boys are engaged in the initial phases of the marches on Berlin and Tokyo. They are standing in awe before the seven wonders, are chuckling over the living conduct of strange people, are making friends, are comparing the old worlds with the new.

Letters written home by our travelers are shedding new light on far places, are bringing them to actual being for the folk back home. For instance, parts of three letters that recently arrived from T/Sgt. George J. Myers, written to his father, Edward Myers of North Pickaway street.

For years George was a radio "ham" and nightly he talked with other "hams" in distant lands. Now, he is seeing some of those places and describing them and his reactions. George writes:

Visits Palestine

"While I was in Palestine I visited Jerusalem and Bethlehem. Of course, I did not get to see everything, but I did get to see most of the points of interest. In Bethlehem I visited the Church of Nativity. It was built originally by the Crusaders, but there have been some additions since. It stands at the spot where Christ was born, and in it is the manger, or rather a replica. The bell on this church is rung every Christmas and broadcast to the world.

"I also visited the Milk Grotto in Bethlehem, the place where Mary took the child Jesus when all the babies in Bethlehem were being slain.

Visits Holy Sepulcher

"The Church of the Holy Sepulcher was about the most interesting place in Jerusalem. The tomb of Christ is there, located near the center of the church and you almost have to crawl to get in, but it is beautiful. This is on the site where Christ was crucified, and I saw a rock with three square holes, said to be the ones in which the crosses were placed. Also in the church is a pillar to which Christ was tied before he was nailed to the cross.

"I saw the Wailing Wall, the Church of Gethsemane and the Church of Agony, near which is the cave where the Last Supper was supposed to have been served. I am sending a leaf from one of the dead olive trees in the Garden of Gethsemane.

"I spent six days at the Red Cross hotel in Cairo and had a grand time in the city. Visited the pyramids and every spot of interest in the vicinity, and they are many. Rooms at the hotel are free to soldiers, but the meals cost $1 a day. While the food there is good, I ate most of my meals in native restaurants. The bazaar was interesting, but I bought very little, for the prices were set for tourists and seemed too high.

Five Days In Bagdad

"I spent a few days in Bagdad. The city itself is not so good, being very old and dirty. They have a few fairly nice stores, but for the most part it is like most other cities in this part of the world. There is, however, a nice residential district, but only the very rich live there.

"We were inside one mosque, but found little of interest. We visited a second one, a beautiful structure with five large domes covered with gold. We were not permitted inside, but from what we were able to see neither gold nor silver were spared on the inside decoration.

"I was strolling on the street one evening and saw a cathode ray tube in a store window. It stirred my curiosity and I went inside and met the proprietor. He talked English well and told me he had been a radio ham, and the only one in Iraq. His station stirred the interest of the king and he was called to set up his station in the palace. The king bought him higher-powered equipment and he (the king) learned to operate it. After the king was killed the radio station was taken for government broadcasts.

"Finest Evening"

"The finest evening of my army service I spent in Bagdad. Two other fellows and myself went out to Bagdad college which is a Catholic institution operated by Jesuit

OHIO'S FARMERS VOICE TARIFF WALL OPINIONS

A poll on "Postwar Planning and the Tariff" which 2,553 Ohio farmers have answered for the Ohio Farm Bureau's educational department, shows that half of them believe postwar planning at this time is urgent. An additional 41 percent regard it desirable.

Nearly half of these farmers think a scaling down of tariff walls would promote more friendly relations between nations. More than a third are doubtful, with an additional 15 percent not believing as the majority.

Answering the question of whether tariffs would be a help or a hindrance to cooperatives in this and other countries which might want to trade with each other after the war, 28 percent of the farmers believe tariffs would be a help, 41 percent a hindrance, and 31 percent are undecided.

Two of the priests played on the team and the other members were 16 and 18-year-old boys. They won by two runs even though we could have beaten them. Their pitching was terrible.

"After the game we went over to the house where the fathers live and had dinner with them. After eating we went to the recreation room and one of the fathers played the piano and we all sang songs. Not church songs, either.

"We went out the next day and played them another game, winning this one. They asked us to stay for dinner again, but we didn't for their food is rationed and a dozen hungry soldiers can really make a dent in a food supply."

000,000 without interest or security." Contract No. 4 provides for "an additional advance of $18,500,000 without interest." Total $68,500,000.

Merry-Go-Round: "It will be beyond U. S. control, will escape U. S. taxes."

Truman committee: "It would not be subject to the tax and anti-trust laws of the United States."

Merry-Go-Round: "If the contract is cancelled before December 31, 1945, the balance of the $68,500,000 not repaid by the delivery of aluminum will remain in ALCOA's hands and need not be repaid to the United States."

Truman committee: "In event of cancellation, the Aluminum company is permitted to retain without obligation the unaccounted-for balance of the advance payment of $68,500,000."

Merry-Go-Round: "The original $68,500,000 will just about pay for the cost of the power plant. Thus ALCOA has no expense and absolutely no risk."

Truman committee: "The cost of the project was approximately $65,900,000, or somewhat less than the $68,500,000 advanced without interest. Removes all risk from the venture."

Merry-Go-Round: "While Jesse was helping promote this giant plant in Canada, with its large use of strategic materials, various American public power projects, which could have supplies ample power, were abandoned for lack of strategic materials. Among them were the Shasta project, some Grand Coulee units, one new TVA dam, the Colorado Big Thompson project, an the Davis Dam on the Colorado river."

Truman committee: "In order to permit immediate manufacture of large Shipshaw turbines and generators, which corresponded in size to the units for Shasta dam, the Aluminum Corporation of America requested priorities for certain critical materials. At the same time that the Canadian project was being rushed to completion at all possible speed, with financing and priority assistance, orders were being rushed by the WPB for many public power projects in this country, including Grand Coulee, Shasta, Keswick, Davis dam, the Colorado Big Thompson and several Tennessee Valley Authority dams."

Yet, despite these facts, well known to Jesse Jones and other cabinet members at the time, he issued a categorical statement to newspaper editors: "All of these statements are false."

CEILING SET TO B A L K SOARING POTATO PRICES

A bulletin outlining pricing methods to determine ceiling prices for "certified seed potatoes and "war-approved" seed potatoes is now available at the Ration Board.

Farmers, carlot distributors, wholesalers and retailers may obtain copies from the price clerk of the board.

The maximum price regulation fixes ceilings at all levels from grower to retailer, and is expected to prevent a recurrence of the distorted prices for seed potatoes that developed last Spring.

Basic prices for "certified" seed potatoes are $1 per hundred pounds above established ceilings for tablestock potatoes. "War-approved" seed potatoes will have a basic maximum price of 50 cents per 100 pounds above the price of tablestock potatoes.

THE TRUTH— about Water-Mixed Paints

There have been so many so-called water-mixed paints introduced recently, and so little information offered regarding their stability and comparative merits, that The Glidden Company offers the following answers to specific questions in the public's mind.

Are Water-Mixed Paints a Wartime Emergency Product? Definitely not. For example SPRED, Glidden's own water-mix paint formula, was in development four years before Pearl Harbor. It is a new paint invention—the fore-runner of a whole series of new style paints Glidden will introduce after the war.

Is the Water used as a Substitute for Oil? No. SPRED contains the same kind of pigments and oils as old fashioned wall paint... but in SPRED the oils are in emulsion, requiring no turpentine or thinner. The water used in mixing SPRED acts only as the "vehicle" or lubricant—one of the big reasons it is easier to paint with SPRED.

Aren't all Water-Mixed Paints about Alike? Again the answer is NO. SPRED is the only washable water-mixed paint made from soy beans.

How Does SPRED Differ? SPRED is an "homogenized" paint in which the emulsion of oil particles floats on a "vehicle" of water.

Are SPRED Colors Unusual? Yes. Because Glidden has its own color-manufacturing facilities, SPRED is offered in an exclusive range of exceptionally clear, beautiful, pastel tones.

Is SPRED Economical? Yes. One gallon of SPRED mixed with one-half gallon of water makes six quarts of rich, full-bodied paint—enough for an average room. Yet one gallon of SPRED costs

FLIES PLANE HOME AFTER MID-AIR COLLISION

THIS BATTERED P-38 fighter, minus one wing and almost torn in two, comes to rest in a wheat field near an American air base in Italy after a miraculous escape by its pilot, Lieut. Thomas Smith of Madero, Cal. Missing a Messerschmitt with the plane's guns, Lieutenant Smith collided with the Nazi plane in mid-air. It crashed in flames, but he managed to fly home safely. he had no crew—no bombardier,

IN PEACE MOVELONDON, March 6—Pravda, organ of the Communist party in Russia, was quoted today as expressing doubt over "Finnish sincerity" in Russo-Finnish peace negotiations, amid rumors that peace talks would be broken off this week.The Moscow radio quoted Pravda, in a lengthy article, with the statement that "the position tak-ed by the Finnish press regarding armistice terms cannot fail to cause doubts regarding the sincerity of the hopes of Finnish ruling circles for peace."In a Stockholm dispatch, the Daily Express declared that Hel-sinki's delay in accepting Moscow's six-point peace offer was expected to bring a break in negotiations sometime this week.From two neutral countries, meantime, came reports of Bul-of them confirmed.The Daily Telegraph credited a "Swiss source" with reports that the Bulgarians have communicated to

Pertaining To Alibi

Special To The Herald

WASHINGTON, C. H., March 6
—James W. Collett was tense in court here today as witnesses paraded to the stand in support of the state's contention that he is guilty of the murder of the Elmer McCoy family. As the finding of the bodies of McCoy, his wife and daughter, Mildred, last Thursday morning was related Collett leaned forward in his chair eyeing the witnesses intently. Once he left his seat and whispered to his counsel, apparently questioning the time being set forth.That the defense is pinning its chief hope on an alibi was further indicated by the close cross examination of witnesses who had testified to the time of the finding of the bodies or of early visits to the McCoy farm after the tragedy was revealed.

Sees Murder Victims

Ellis Bishop, a local electrician, was the first witness. He told of visiting the farm with John Ducey Thanksgiving morning, intending to hunt. He told of seeing the bodies of the three murder victims.
Cross examination was brief.Dr. E. H. McDonald, who went to the farm with the sheriff, described the positions of the slain
McCoy and the nature of their gunshot wounds.Dewey Clayton, who was employed as a farm laborer of Mc-Coy, told of appearing at the farm for work and first seeing the body of Mildred McCoy lying near her car. He ran toward the house and saw Mrs. McCoy's body. He then hurried home and called the sheriff. Clayton said that two cars arrived at the McCoy home Thursday evening, the first about 8:15 and the second 20 minutes later. Under close cross-examination he said that his watch was out of order and that he was guessing as to the time.

100 farmers in the Rehoboth beach area protested today against the importation of Japanese-American labor by a vegetable grower, asserting they would rather have German or Italian prisoners.A mass meeting was scheduled by their spokesmen, Roland D. J.
Marsh in an effort to balk the plan of Charles Mills who announced he will add 50 more of the workers to the three now working on his 1200 acres."The Japanese invasion has already happened," declared Marsh.
"If we must have outside labor,
let it be German or Italian war prisoners under armed military guard." He claimed the Japanese-American workers were "a men-

Mills said he would back his new

Protest Bombing Of Germany's War CentersNEW YORK, March 6—Twenty-eight prominent clergymen and other national leaders, including the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick and Oswald Garrison Villard, vigorously protested today the "obliteration" bombing of German cities."Christian people should be moved to examine themselves concerning their participation in this carnival of death," they declared, "even though they be thousands of miles away."The appeal for a halt to such bombing was contained in a foreword to "Massacre By Bombing," an article on new bombing methods against German cities. Written by Vera Brittain, English author, it is published in the March issue of Fellowship, pacifist publication.Prominent Protestant clergymen from widely separated parts of the United States joined in the protest, which expressed grave concern for "what is being done in our name in Europe."

"Conscience Lacking"

"In our time, as never before, war is showing itself in its logical colors," they declared. "In the first World War some shreds of the rules of war were observed to the end. Laws of war are paradoxical; but so far as they went they bore witness to the survival of some fragments of a Christian conscience among the combatants.""But today these fragments are disappearing. The contesting parties pay little heed to the former decencies and chivalries, save among their own comrades."

"Call For Repentance"

"Here surely, there is a call for repentance; that we have not acquainted ourselves with the varieties and realities of what is being done in our name in Europe; and surely Christian obligation calls on us to pray incessantly to God that he in his own way may bid the winds and waves of war be still."Among the signers, besides Dr.
Fosdick and Villard, were:John Haynes Holmes, New York Community church; Rev. Dr.
Allan A. Hunter, Los Angeles; Dr.
Rufus Jones, Haverford college; forces, had lessened appreciably.

The air war against Germany was maintained during the night by speedy Royal Air Force Mosquito bombers which battered western Germany. The targets attacked were not identified by the air ministry which said all of the plywood craft that struck in the wake of powerful daylight blows by American heavy and medium bombers against France had returned to base.

The possibility that the Reich was under assault by daylight today was seen in the fact that the Berlin radio and several other transmitters in Nazi-occupied Europe shut down suddenly.

Red Army forces pressed onward in their new offensive in the Ukraine aimed at severing the vital Lwow-Odessa railway, lifeline for Nazi legions in southern Russia.

Nazi Retreat Admitted

The Nazi-operated Paris, radio admitted that the Germans had been forced to withdraw "at a number of points" after suffering reverses. Radio Paris said that superior Soviet forces, including 14 infantry divisions supported by three tank divisions, were attacking and acknowledged that advanced Russian units had at some places fought their way into the German lines.

The campaign to trap Hitler's Dnieper bend forces and neutralize the Nazi-held Odessa stronghold is directed by famed Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov who halted the Germans almost at the gates of Moscow in 1941 and turned the invader back.

The Russians swept headlong over a 112-mile front and occupied more than 500 localities. Penetration at distances varying from 15 to 31 miles were made into the Nazi positions and 12 German divisions were routed. The push from the Shepetovka region of the Ukraine carried Marshal Zhukov's forces as much as five miles beyond the pre-war Polish frontier.

Japs Hard Hit

Allied forces in the Pacific dealt new devastating blows against the Japs principally through aerial assaults.

Headquarters of Lieut.-Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell in China announced the destruction of between 40 and 60 Japanese aircraft by twin-engine American Mitchell bombers and Lightning fighters. The Jap craft were bagged in combat and on the ground in China, Thailand and at Hainan island.

Airmen under command of Gen. Douglas MacArthur loosed more than 300 tons of high explosives on Jap positions over a wide area in the southwest Pacific. The main assault was directed against oft-bombed Rabaul, New Britain island base which was hit with 164 tons of bombs.

The general said his dismounted Texas cavalrymen who went ashore in the Admiralty islands now are engaged in final mopping up of the battle area on Los Negros, site of the Momote airfield.

A GLIMPSE AT WAR-TIME ENGLAND

Five Winters of War Fail to Shake British

UNDERGROUND WAR PLANT—These British women war workers are making airplane parts in an underground factory, situated in the galleries of an abandoned stone quarry—safe from air attack. Elaborate lighting and ventilating systems make this sunken workshop as comfortable as a plant on the surface.

By BENJAMIN T. SALMON
Chief Engineer,
Ryan Aeronautical Company
Written Especially for
Central Press

SAN DIEGO, Cal.—Two questions most frequently asked of returned visitors to England: "What is life like on the tight little island today? How is the air war going?"

Recently I spent several weeks touring England on business for Uncle Sam. I enjoyed an unusual opportunity to observe how the Britishers continue to take the war after more than four years. I learned, too, some illuminating facts about the war in the air, and the possibilities of German capitulation.

About British life: Suppose your gasoline were limited to enough for a single shopping trip each week. A diagram is pasted on your windshield showing the shopping route. A policeman checks your sticker, and if he finds you more than 200 feet off your prescribed route, you are liable to an automatic fine of $1,400, without trial.

Clothing Is Precious

Or, suppose all clothing is rationed. You have 36 coupons a year. A suit snips off 28, a pair of shoes seven, a shirt four to 10. Life would seem far more complicated than in the United States, wouldn't it?

Yet these are the conditions under which the English live. Today they are shabbily dressed, look cold, tired and hungry; but they are cheerful, and as determined as the proverbial British bulldog to get the war over with as soon as possible. They do not waver under bombing or privation. They live in a virtual front-line battleground.

I learned many amazing things during my tour of the English aircraft factories. Some of the most surprising (and most encouraging) things I saw cannot be told.

But I can say that I saw one huge underground aircraft factory with more than two million square feet of floor space, built on several levels of an old salt mine. Imagine the largest war plant in your community buried hundreds of feet underground, and you will get an idea of the size of that English factory.

I saw other airplane parts being built in garages and tiny shops scattered all over England, as part of the dispersal system adopted when German bombers were coming over nightly.

In talking to executives and supervisors in English aircraft factories, I was absolutely dumbfounded at the calmness with which they discussed "high wages" which would be the equivalent of a southern share-cropper's pal in this country.

The average English aircraft worker gets 15 cents to 20 cents an hour. Absolute top wages for skilled mechanics with many years of service, is equivalent to 62 cents an hour in our money. And aircraft is the highest paid industry in England!

PURINA GIVES $525 TO RED CROSS WAR FUND

Red Cross drive organization for the county was completed Monday with acceptance of the chairman's report of Deercreek township by Miss Carolyn Bochard, Williamsport.

Several Circleville districts have already made final reports and the chairman states that these returns are very favorable. However he says it is impossible now to make any estimate of the final return.

The largest single donation received so far was for $350 from the local Ralston Purina company, and the home office of the same company sent an additional check in the amount of $175.

BUY WAR BONDS

BENJAMIN T. SALMON—He saw and was impressed by the courage and will-to-win of the British.

I can't see how British workers manage to live on what they make. The basic working week is 46 hours, with time-and-a-quarter for the next 10 hours, and time-and-a-half starting at 56 hours. Consequently a worker who takes home $25 a week considers he is doing very well.

These rates were fixed by union contract. They might allow for a comfortable standard of living if prices were low in England—but prices are every bit as high, or higher, than they are here. Cigarettes cost 45 cents. A skimp dinner in a restaurant is about $3.50. When I tried to buy a bunch of grapes that might have cost 10 cents a pound in normal times here, I found they were selling in London for $5 a pound.

Part of the reason for this is the rigid class system which still endures in England. A gardener's son has no thought of growing up to be anything but a gardener. A cab driver's son would not be accepted in English life as anything but a cab driver. A British working man never expects to own a car, nor to have central heating or inside plumbing in his house.

Complete Job Control

The war is beginning to break this up, however. The government has power to take a worker out of any occupation and put him in any other job where it thinks he will be more useful to the war effort. It can, and does, make him leave his home and take a position in some other part of England. He cannot quit the job assigned to him. Consequently a lot of people are getting a taste of jobs entirely new to them and their ancestors.

Another thing that surprised me was the pitifully antiquated methods of building airplanes which many British factories are still using. Rivets are still pounded in with a hammer, by hand. Pneumatic rivet guns, while in use in some places, are not prevalent. Countless other kinds of work which American factory workers always do with machines are still painfully turned out by hand.

With such methods, it is a wonder that the British turn out such good airplanes as they do. Even so, when I got a close look at the workmanship of their aircraft, none of it was better than average by American factory standards. With the man-power shortage a lot worse in England than it is here, I suppose skilled workers are rarer than six-headed hens.

All of this adds up to a pair of facts: Not only are the British "taking it"; with us, they are dealing punishing blows to the Germans.

As an illuminating anecdote, ponder the amazing landing of six Focke-Wulf 190s at a certain English airfield. Somehow the Germans gave the correct identification signal by radio and light while circling in the darkness. Six landed in rapid succession, and when anti-aircraft guns began erupting, two others flew back to Europe. Almost before the six had started.

pilots were popping out, hands raised high overhead.

Motorcycles and jeeps (or peeps, as the British call them) bristling with machine guns swarmed onto the field and surrounded the Germans. Onlookers noticed that the planes were sleek and shiny—unmarked by weather or bullet holes—in fact, brand new.

Six Who Cracked

The pilots walked forward, hands up, eyes squinting in the glare of British flashlights.

"We surrender. We are finished," said the leader in guttural English. The British officer who moved to meet them was bewildered. "What is it all about? What were you trying to do?"

"We merely try to land and surrender," answered the Nazi. "We have flown tonight from Germany, because we have had enough of this war. Ah! We have been flying for four years, and that is too much. We know which way this war is going."

The news was published and caused a mild sensation all over the country. For eight Focke-Wulf 190s to try to surrender in mass was somewhat of a novelty and some indication that the enemy was cracking badly.

But the British and American pilots in England shook their heads. They knew differently.

"Germany will not be beaten for two years yet," an AAF officer told me at a British operational base. "Some of her oldest pilots may be getting discouraged, but that doesn't count for much. Thousands of young flyers are coming up to replace the veterans—and they are good pilots, fighting fools, fanatics who have been brought up since childhood in the Hitler Youth and are glad to die for the Fuehrer."

Another flyer chimed in: "One flight into Germany is enough to convince anybody that the Nazis are still full of fight. They've got a huge 30-mile belt of air bases extending all along the French and Belgian coasts. Whenever any Allied planes start across, the Germans literally blacken the sky with Messerschmitt 109s and Focke-Wulf 190s. Our boys just have to slug their way through, sometimes against odds as high as a hundred planes to one."

NEW MILITARY REGIME FAILS ON RECOGNITION

Prompted By Chile

The American government's announcement of the virtual suspension of diplomatic relations with Argentina was prompted by word that Chile was taking the position that the question of recognition of the new Argentine military regime was not involved in the situation which has developed in that Latin American republic.

Washington has felt that the question of recognition was definitely involved. The state department takes the position that the pro-fascist military clique in Argentina forced former President Pedro Ramirez out of office and set up a new government. In the hope of avoiding the recognition issue, the Argentine military group claimed that Ramirez delegated his authority to Gen. Farrell.

The state department was striving to get all the Allied American republics to agree on a policy of non-recognition of the new regime when word was received that Chile intended to accept Farrell's contention that there had been no change in the government. Washington then decided to act immediately by announcing that it was not maintaining official relations with the new regime.

However, the way was left open for possible recognition of the Farrell regime at a later date providing that government takes certain measures to cooperate in the defense of the western hemisphere.

Acting Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., said the measures which the new Argentine regime must take include:

1. Internment of all Axis diplomats and agents;
2. Expulsion of all Axis spies;
3. Termination of trade relations with the Axis powers.

quire into any executive agency and to question a cabinet officer or any other official," Smith said.

Some senators, including one of the best known senate constitutional lawyers, backed Smith's view. One senator, who declined to be quoted, said there is no doubt of the congressional power.

A decision of the supreme court in 1927, in which it upheld the right of a senate committee to force Mal Daugherty to testify in an investigation of conduct of the attorney-general's office under his brother, Harry M. Daugherty, was cited.

Daniels, in his letter to Smith, informed the committee shortly after its decision that he would submit to questioning. He expressed belief, however, that a legislative committee still could not force a presidential aide to testify "as to matters which necessarily involve a conversation with the President, and which might possibly affect the public interest."

DOW DECLARES GERMAN CARTEL CHARGE FALSE

WASHINGTON, March 6—William H. Dow, president and son of the founder of the Dow Chemical Co., told the Truman committee today that a justice department charge linking his magnesium firm with a German cartel was "infamous" and unfounded in fact.

Defending his company's record in war production before the senate committee, Dow said: "The Dow Chemical Company has been unfairly treated. It has served the nation in spite of and not because of the government. The magnesium program of the government, and consequently the service of supply to the Allies, was made possible by the foresight of the Dow Chemical Company in having ready the facilities for production when and as the materials were needed."

Dow declared that every act complained of by the justice department "as against the public interest was actually in the public interest."

"If anyone impeded the magnesium program—it was not Dow," he asserted.

The witness testified that in 1942, critical year in magnesium production, Dow produced 84.2 percent of all the magnesium output in the country.

FOREST FIRE THREAT MOUNTS IN HILL AREA

Forest fire threats in the wooded districts of central Ohio are increasing with the approach of Spring and already warnings are being sounded by state officials. While recent rains have lessened the danger somewhat, woods flames still remain a distinct danger.

John A. Bastian, fire control forester of Ohio, says that fire hazard conditions will likely be critical over most of the Ohio hill country. He points out that burning of brook sedge and brush does no real good, and may be highly destructive to soil, timber, water and wildlife resources.

In southern Ohio the forest fire lookout towers will again provide detection service this Spring. Aerial fire patrol will resume the work of spotting fires in eastern and southeastern counties of the state. Seven planes will be used in this service, operating on all days when conditions warrant the patrol work.

Initial Supply of 6,500 Tons of Ag Limestone Available To Farmers

In order to supply the cooperating farmers of Pickaway county with agricultural limestone as provided for in the AAA Food Fights For Freedom Program, the County AAA Committee has contracted with Marble Cliff Quarries of Columbus for 5,000 tons and Sugar Creek Quarries of Washington C. H., for 1,500 tons as an initial supply. These tonnages will be increased as the cooperating farmers place their orders with the committee and as the supply becomes available.

The price at the quarry located at Columbus, is $1.50 per ton.

Under the 1944 farm program, cooperating farmers, whose allowance is $40 or less, can receive the total amount of this allowance in agricultural limestone if they so desire. If the farm allowance is above $40, then the amount of limestone which can be received in lieu of payment, cannot exceed the amount earned by soil building or conserving practices, which includes the application of limestone.

A cooperating Pickaway County farmer can purchase the limestone privately if he so desires and receive payment for applying it to the land at the rate of $2.10 per ton up to the farm allowance.

While it is felt that the county committee will be unable to secure enough limestone to meet the total demand of the farmers of the county, every effort on the part of the committee and the contractors will be made to fill all orders.

It would take 1,535,844 tons of limestone applied to the land in Pickaway County to make possible the maximum production of all the soil in the county.

The application of limestone to soil deficient in limestone increases the food value of the crops grown on it as well as the quantity grown. The application of limestone where needed is one of the easiest ways to increase production.

Dewey Downs, a member of the County AAA Committee, has charge of the distribution of the program limestone in the county.

CAREFUL FEEDING KEY TO MEAT, MILK AND EGGS

Reliable reports on feed supplies, which have been gathered by the Farm Bureau Cooperative Association, indicate that livestock feeds are disappearing at such a rapid rate that entire sections of the country may be out of feed before new crops are available.

The report says the uncertain factor in the situation is the extent to which livestock numbers have been liquidated.

This being the condition, the Bureau stresses the necessity of removing low-producing, feed-wasting animals and poultry through orderly culling programs. Also the necessity of careful feeding to prevent waste, and the continued importance of feed conservation measures.

Wartime Report of the Pennsylvania Railroad

SUMMARY OF 97th ANNUAL REPORT which was mailed to stockholders at the end of February. Operating revenues increased $141,298,532 over 1942. Operating expenses increased $109,369,984. Taxes increased $55,826,689, or 44.8% over the previous year. Net income was $85,418,484, a decrease of $16,050,309.

THE YEAR 1943

The war continued to dominate the ever increasing transportation effort. While performance was highly satisfactory from the standpoint of meeting every demand of the war emergency, it could not of necessity be wholly adequate from the standpoint of the character of the service performed, particularly the passenger service. Nevertheless, considering the abnormal conditions that prevailed throughout the year, the results as a whole can be viewed as a creditable achievement. There was a heavy increase in the volume of business handled, the railroad being operated to a greater capacity than ever before.

Notwithstanding decreases in rates, operating revenues increased $141,298,532 due to the greater volume of traffic, both passenger and freight, but this very fact, together with higher costs of material and fuel and increases in wages, resulted in an increase in operating expenses of $109,369,984. At the same time, taxes increased by $55,826,689, or 44.8%, over the previous year.

Despite the fact that the Company in 1943 did the largest business in its history, its Net Income was less than in 1942 by some $16,050,309 because of the substantial increases in operating costs and taxes mentioned above. It seemed wise to maintain the dividend at the same rate as paid in 1942, namely, 5%, or $2.50 per share. Dividends at this rate were accordingly paid in 1943.

THE NATIONAL EMERGENCY

In 1943, the railroads performed a service unequalled in the history of transportation. They were called upon to handle a volume of freight and passenger traffic exceeding that of the record year 1942.

The ability of the railroads to handle this record volume of traffic was due to further improvements in facilities and operating methods; to splendid cooperation between the railroads, the shippers and employees, the Army and Navy, and other agencies of Government, and to the continued helpful attitude of the Office of Defense Transportation.

The railroads look to the future with the conviction that they will keep in the forefront of industrial progress, and will meet successfully the competition to be expected. They are convinced that no other form of transportation can supplant the railroads unless unintelligent regulation, excessive subsidization of competitors or inequitable taxes shall so overburden them as to deprive them of equality of opportunity, an essential in any sound economic order.

TAXES

The railroads, always a heavily taxed industry, are accustomed to bearing their full share of the cost of government, and well realize that any excessive profits derived from the war effort should be subject to taxation as are the excess profits of any other industry; but the determination of what profits are excessive should not ignore the plain facts respecting the railroad industry, its position and needs.

During the last several decades, the processes of regulation have made it necessary for most of the financing by the railroads to be done with borrowed money for which they are not given adequate credit in calculating return on investment. Again, the railroads have not been, like other industries, in a position to carry adequate charges for depreciation and obsolescence-amortization, and income which should properly be charged off for these purposes is subject to the excess profits tax. Thus, the railroads find a large part of what is, in fact, no more than a reasonable return on their investment treated as excess profits and subjected to an enormous excess profits tax, where in fact no excess profits exist.

The effect on the railroads of the so-called excess profits tax is not only to deprive them of a reasonable return on their investment, but to prevent them from laying aside out of current earnings the reserves needed for future expenditures which are being made inevitable by wartime conditions and the pressure of wartime traffic.

Sound public policy not only justifies but should require the accumulation by the railroads of large post-war reserves to meet post-war changes in transportation practices and methods, but the tax policy of the Government is heading them along the same unfortunate path as at the close of the last war, when the railroads had to borrow large sums of money and go into debt to revamp their properties.

Today, while the railroads are doing the largest business in their history, it would be advantageous not only to them, but also to the public at large and to railroad employees as a whole, if the tax laws were amended so as to permit the creation now of the reserves needed for post-war rehabilitation, with resulting greater employment in the post-war period.

FUNDED DEBT

The Pennsylvania Railroad System has retired or purchased during the year debt in the hands of the public amounting to $45,354,220, which, after allowing for the issuance of $12,240,000 Equipment Trust Obligations, makes a net reduction in debt of System Companies in the hands of the public of $33,114,220.

During the last five years, there has been a net reduction of $124,000,000 in the debt of the System in the hands of the public.

STOCKHOLDERS

The Capital Stock of the Company at the close of the year was owned by 209,618 stockholders, an increase of 3,653 compared with December 31, 1942, with an average holding of 62.8 shares.

The management is always appreciative of the cooperation extended by security holders, the public and employees. It recognizes its responsibility to keep the stockholders, the employees and the public generally, informed as to the Company's business, service, finances and other important matters, which is done through advertising in newspapers and magazines, in announcements to the press and in the dissemination of information in other forms, as well as in the annual report.

THE EMPLOYEES

The Board takes pleasure in acknowledging the continued efficiency and loyalty of the employees, which made possible the handling of a volume of traffic exceeding that of any year in the history of the Company.

44,448 employees of the System have entered the Armed Forces, serving in every part of the world, of whom 123 have made the supreme sacrifice.

Many thousands of new employees have had to be trained to take their places, including 21,750 women who are now in the railroad service. Never were the demands upon the employees so great; never have they met the burden more efficiently and more courageously.

M. W. CLEMENT, President.

ARMY GATHERS INITIAL MAJOR CROWN IN TRACK

NEW YORK, March 6—Army has its first major track crown today after winning the team title in the IC4A games Saturday night before a disappointing crowd of 10,000 at Madison Square Garden. The Cadets went into the meet as co-favorites with Navy, but kept the midshipmen behind them from the very beginning of the meet.

As a special feature in the IC4A circus, Gil Dodds, of Boston, made his fifth attempt of the season to break the indoor mile record of 4:07.4 but turned in the time of 4:10.2 after being lured into running a bad race by Bill Hulise of the New York A. C.

Hulise sprang into the lead and kept it for three-quarters of the distance as Dodds was forced to challenge him no less than six times before finally taking over the lead. Gil finally strode past the hard-driving Hulise and, once Gil took over, Hulise dropped out of the running. By that time, however, Hulise had nearly exhausted the grimly-striding Dodds, and Gil ran the last quarter on courage alone, fighting his own weariness to the tape.

If they did nothing else for the fans, the IC4A games showed the public the difference between big league runners and second-rate performers. While Dodds covered his mile in 4:10.2—a distinct disappointment to the fans—Don Burnham, of Dartmouth, defended his title in the regular mile run with a victory in 4:20.2. The champ was closely pursued right up to the last lap by Rudy Simms, of New York university, who finally faded back ten yards at the finish, but placed second. Ray Zoellner, of Rochester, was third in the IC4A mile.

Eddie Conwell, NYU's star sprinter and the only other defending titlist in the entire meet, won the 60-yard dash in 6.3 seconds. In winning the meet, army piled up a total of 47 points, just one behind the record total hung up by NYU when the Violets won the meet last year. The cadets tallied in nine of the first eleven events and scored 25 percent of their points in the pole vault alone.

JUG WALKS AWAY WITH GULFPORT TOURNAMENT TITLE

GULFPORT, Miss., March 6—Harold "Jug" McSpaden of Philadelphia headed for new worlds to conquer today after winning the $6,000 Gulfport golf tournament with surprising ease, six strokes ahead of his nearest rival, Sammy Byrd of Detroit.

McSpaden's final fourth-round effort was a 68, 3 under par, for a 72-hole card of 70-68-70-68—276, which was 8 under par for the course. Byrd's 282 total was compiled from 143 for his first two rounds to which he added a 69 and a 70. Byron Nelson of Toledo, who has been up in the money with McSpaden and Byrd in recent tournaments, made good again, hauling in one stroke behind Sammy with a 283 total for third place.

Other leaders were Toney Penna of Dayton, O., 284; Johnny Revolta of Evanston, Ill., 286; Leonard Dodson of Kansas City, 288; Freddie Haas, Jr., of New Orleans, an amateur, 288; Craig Wood of Mamaronock, N. Y., 289, and Jimmy Hines of Amsterdam, N. Y., and Elmer Reed of Atlanta, Ga., each with 290.

Last Minute Basket By Purple Crowns Buckeyes As Big Ten Champions

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE
The Ohio State Buckeyes reigned undisputed basketball champions of the Big Ten conference today only by grace of a last-minute basket which gave Northwestern a 42 to 41 victory over Iowa and dashed Hawkeyes hopes for a share in the title.

The climactic contest, one of a weekend doubleheader, was played Saturday night at Iowa City. The Iowans were leading by one point in the closing minutes of the game, and stalling to hold their advantage, when the Wildcats took the ball on the rebound.

Wildcat Forward Duane Sickels slipped through the Hawkeye defense and tossed in an easy shot which gave his team a split in the two-game series. Iowa took the Friday night game 45 to 39 and needed the season's final contest for its first share in a title in 18 years.

While Iowa was dropping this game, Wisconsin was winning in a walk from the Chicago Maroons on the Midway, 74 to 46, and going into a tie with the Hawkeyes for second place.

Dispirited Purdue, which appeared title-bound the first half of the season, took an unexpected 51 to 45 beating at Bloomington from the lowly Indiana Hoosiers and wound up in a fourth-place tie with the troublesome Northwestern Wildcats who previously had knocked Purdue out of a chance to tie for the title.

Illinois, playing at home, moved into a tie with Michigan for sixth place by its 53 to 27 victory over Minnesota with 5 games won and 7 lost. In spite of their indifferent showing in the conference, the Illini have conquered some of the country's highest ranking teams, De Paul and Great Lakes among them.

Ohio State, having closed its season 'way back on February 19 at the top of the standings with 10 won and 2 lost, did not play over the weekend and had only to wait for Northwestern to topple Iowa to be certain it would have to share the title with no other team.

ASHVILLE DROPS PLAIN CITY BY 41 TO 32 COUNT

Pickaway County Athletes To Meet Marysville Thursday Night

BATTLE SCRAPPY TEAM

Dick Messick Nets Eight Buckets, Sparking Quint To Victory

Ashville's basketballers registered their 22nd consecutive win Saturday night when they downed Plain City by a count of 41 to 32 in the Central district Class B tournament in Westerville. Ashville is one of the three undefeated Class B teams in the state and is among the eight survivors of gruelling play in the district so far.

When play is resumed Thursday night at Westerville Ashville will meet Marysville. Pleasant township will be opposed by Claridon, Worthington and Newark St. Francis will tangle and Grove City will meet Utica.

Only four teams remain in the central district Class A tourney at Delaware and semi-finals scheduled for Friday night will pit Columbus South against Columbus Aquinas and undefeated Newark will play Columbus North.

Plain City played scrappy ball against Ashville, but was unable to keep up the terrific pace set by the Pickaway county boys.

Dick Messick made eight buckets, counting six of them from distance. The half ended with Ashville in the lead 21 to 17. In the last four minutes of that session Plain City spurted and it appeared as though it might be anyone's game. However, Ashville turned on the heat in the last half and it was Ashville all the way.

SINGLETON AND LAKE

If you think that the comic difficulties experienced by those two Thursday night zanies, Bud Abbott and roly-poly Lou Costello, are something, wait until they get all tangled up with Blondie and Dagwood Bumstead who will pay them a visit on their weekly broadcast of Thursday 9 p. m. over NBC.

The Bumsteads, popular comic strip characters, brought to life by Penny Singleton and Arthur Lake, will be given yeoman support in the laugh department by such capable Abbott and Costello cast regulars as Elvia Allman, Ken Niles, Mel Blanc and Billy Gray. Connie Haines will serve up the vocals, accompanied by Freddie Rich's orchestra.

Then the wife denies ever having seen the Norths before, and they find themselves in the middle of a first-class mystery. Joseph Curtin and Alice Frost play the title roles.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

MUST TAKE SOME OUT

VULNERABILITY is the guide to taking out some business doubles, or leaving them in. If the opponent is vulnerable and you are not, it is better to leave the double in and beat him a couple of tricks than to make a game of your own. But if he is not vulnerable, you would have to defeat him four tricks to score more than the value of a vulnerable game for your own side. Do some estimating before deciding to leave in a business double. Don't merely pass, as the cartoonists seem to advise.

Counting a non-vulnerable game as roughly worth a bit over 400 points and a vulnerable one as worth something over 600, you can gauge how big a set must be to be more advisable, when your opponents are vulnerable and when they are not vulnerable.

Tomorrow's Problem

Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.

South	West	North	East
1. 1♦	1♥	Dbl	Pass
2. 1♦	1♥	Dbl	Pass
2. 1♦	Pass	2♠	Pass
2NT	Pass	3NT	Pass

Bidding actually done on this rubber bridge deal is shown in the No. 1 sequence, where North's business double was left in by South. Gingerly defense enabled the defenders to beat the contract two tricks, worth only 300 points to them. Carelessness on their part could have enabled West to limit his losses to down one, if they ever let him get into the dummy to use his diamond K for

SINATRA, DEHAVEN

Frank Sinatra and Screen Actress Gloria DeHaven play the leading roles, when "Screen Guild Players" present "The Gay Divorcee" Monday, at 9 p. m., over WBNS. Originally scheduled a week earlier, the Sinatra-DeHaven vehicle was postponed to allow the "Players" to present Charles Ruggles, Ann Southern and Sam Levene in "Three Men on a Horse" on their February 28 broadcast.

RADIO NEWS NOTES

Joe E. Brown, who starts his own quiz series, "Stop and Go" over the Blue network March 23, is scheduled to be Eddie Cantor's guest on NBC Wednesday night when Cantor announces the details of his $5,000 award to the most typical soldier. Booking of Brown is no more than logical, he having visited more bases overseas than any other entertainer. Broadcast will come from Camp Haan, Riverside, Calif.

When Phil Baker starts broadcasting "Take It Or Leave It" from Hollywood over CBS this Sunday, Cookie Fairchild will become one of the busiest handleaders heard from there. In addition to joining Baker, Cookie continues on the Eddie Cantor and Ginny Simms programs and is doing scores for pictures as well.

A pair of Spanish settlers rescue "I Love a Mystery" detectives over CBS Monday at 6 p. m. as "The Fear That Crept Like a Cat" enters its second week.

Circleville Soldier Writes of Visit To Historic Places

GEORGE MYERS TELLS OF TRIP TO BETHLEHEM

Visits Jerusalem, Bagdad And Cairo, Plays Baseball At Iraq College

MEETS KING'S RADIO MEN

Church Of Holy Sepulcher Most Interesting Sight, Sergeant Says

Pickaway county's representation in far corners of the world was never what it is today. From the poles to the equator in both Hemispheres, in practically every land not held by the Axis powers, on all of the seven seas, local boys are engaged in the initial phases of the marches on Berlin and Tokyo. They are standing in awe before the seven wonders, are chuckling over the living conduct of strange people, are making friends, are comparing the old worlds with the new.

Letters written home by our travelers are shedding new light on far places, are bringing them to actual being for the folk back home. For instance, parts of three letters that recently arrived from T/Sgt. George J. Myers, written to his father, Edward Myers of North Pickaway street.

For years George was a radio "ham" and nightly he talked with other "hams" in distant lands. Now, he is seeing some of those places and describing them and his reactions. George writes:

Visits Palestine

"While I was in Palestine I visited Jerusalem and Bethlehem. Of course, I did not get to see everything, but I did get to see most of the points of interest. In Bethlehem I visited the Church of Nativity. It was built originally by the Crusaders, but there have been some additions since. It stands at the spot where Christ was born, and in it is the manger, or rather a replica. The bell on this church is rung every Christmas and broadcast to the world.

"I also visited the Milk Grotto in Bethlehem, the place where Mary took the child Jesus when all the babies in Bethlehem were being slain.

Visits Holy Sepulcher

"The Church of the Holy Sepulcher was about the most interesting place in Jerusalem. The tomb of Christ is there, located near the center of the church and you almost have to crawl to get in, but it is beautiful. This is on the site where Christ was crucified, and I saw a rock with three square holes, said to be the ones in which the crosses were placed. Also in the church is a pillar to which Christ was tied before he was nailed to the cross.

"I saw the Walling Wall, the Church of Gethsemane and the Church of Agony, near which is the cave where the Last Supper was supposed to have been served. I am sending a leaf from one of the dead olive trees in the Garden of Gethsemane.

"I spent six days at the Red Cross hotel in Cairo and had a grand time in the city. Visited the pyramids and every spot of interest in the vicinity, and they are many. Rooms at the hotel are free to soldiers, but the meals cost $1 a day. While the food there is good, I ate most of my meals in native restaurants. The bazaar was interesting, but I bought very little, for the prices were set for tourists and seemed too high.

Five Days in Bagdad

"I spent a few days in Bagdad. The city itself is not so good, being very old and dirty. There are a few fairly nice stores, but for the most part it is like most other cities in this part of the world. There is, however, a nice residential district, but only the very rich live there.

"We were inside one mosque, but found little of interest. We visited a second one, a beautiful structure with five large domes covered with gold. We were not permitted inside, but from what we were able to see neither gold nor silver were spared on the inside decoration.

"I was strolling on the street one evening and saw a cathode ray tube in a store window. It stirred my curiosity and I went inside and met the proprietor. He talked English well and told me he had been a radio ham, and the only one in Iraq. His station stirred the interest of the king and he was called to set up his station in the palace. The king bought him higher-powered equipment and he (the king) learned to operate it. After the king was killed the radio station was taken for government broadcasts.

"Finest Evening"

"The finest evening of my army service I spent in Bagdad. Two other fellows and myself went out to Bagdad college which is a Catholic institution operated by Jesuit

OHIO'S FARMERS VOICE TARIFF WALL OPINIONS

A poll on "Postwar Planning and the Tariff" which 2,583 Ohio farmers have answered for the Ohio Farm Bureau's educational department, shows that half of them believe postwar planning at this time is urgent. An additional 41 percent regard it desirable.

POLICE JAIL FOUR ON INTOXICATION CHARGES

Circleville police Saturday night jailed four men on charges of intoxication, including Henry Fife whose in-again-out-again practice is causing authorities some concern. Others jailed were Dan Walton, of South Bloomingville; Simon Bradley, of the city who also is accused of resisting arrest, and Joseph Friend, who lives on the Kingston pike.

All are expected to face the mayor in court Monday night.

priests. The fathers showed us around and asked if we couldn't get a bunch to come out for a game of baseball with the college team. Two of the priests played on the team and the other members were 16 and 18-year-old boys. They won by two runs even though we could have beaten them. Their pitching was terrible.

"After the game we went over to the house where the fathers live and had dinner with them. After eating we went to the recreation room and one of the fathers played the piano and we all sang songs. Not church songs, either.

"We went out the next day and played them another game, winning this one. They asked us to stay for dinner again, but we didn't for their food is rationed and a dozen hungry soldiers can really make a dent in a food supply."

YANKS BLAST NAZI GUN POSITIONS

HIGH OVER CISTERNA DI LITTORIA in the Rome beachhead, an A-20 Boston Bomber of the 12th Air Force drops its missiles on German gun positions that were blasting Allied troops. The photo, made from an accompanying Allied attacking plane, displays the accuracy of the bombardier, for the enemy weapons were smothered with explosives. This is a U. S. Army Air Forces photo. 000,000 without interest or security." Contract No. 4 provides for "an additional advance of $18,500,000 without interest." Total $68,500,000.

Merry-Go-Round: "It will be beyond U. S. control, will escape U. S. taxes."

Truman committee: "It would not be subject to the tax and anti-trust laws of the United States."

Merry-Go-Round: "If the contract is cancelled before December 31, 1945, the balance of the $68,500,000 not repaid by the delivery of aluminum will remain in ALCOA's hands and need not be repaid to the United States."

Truman committee: "In event of cancellation, the Aluminum company is permitted to retain without obligation the unaccounted-for balance of the advance payment of $68,500,000."

Merry-Go-Round: "The original $68,500,000 will just about pay for the cost of the power plant. Thus ALCOA has no expense and absolutely no risk."

Truman committee: "The cost of the project was approximately $65,900,000, or somewhat less than the $68,500,000 advanced without interest. Removes all risk from the venture."

Merry-Go-Round: "While Jesse was helping promote this giant plant in Canada, with its large use of strategic materials, various American public power projects, which could have supplies ample power, were abandoned for lack of strategic materials. Among them were the Shasta project, some Grand Coulee units, one new TVA dam, the Colorado Big Thompson project, an dthe Davis Dam on the Colorado river."

Truman committee: "In order to permit immediate manufacture of large shipshaws turbines and generators, which corresponded in size to the units for Shasta dam, the Aluminum Corporation of America requested priorities for certain critical materials. At the same time that the Canadian project was being rushed to completion at all possible speed, with financing and priority assistance, orders were being rushed by the WPB for many public power projects in this country, including Grand Coulee, Shasta, Keswick, Davis dam, the Colorado Big Thompson and several Tennessee Valley Authority dams."

Yet, despite these facts, well known to Jesse Jones and other cabinet members at the time, he issued a categorical statement to newspaper editors: "All of these statements are false."

CEILING SET TO B A L K SOARING POTATO PRICES

A bulletin outlining pricing methods to determine ceiling prices for "certified seed potatoes and "war-approved" seed potatoes is now available at the Ration Board.

Farmers, carlot distributors, wholesalers and retailers may obtain copies from the price clerk of the board.

The maximum price regulation fixes ceilings at all levels from grower to retailer, and is expected to prevent a recurrence of the distorted prices for seed potatoes that developed last Spring.

Basic prices for "certified" seed potatoes are $1 per hundred pounds above established ceilings for tablestock potatoes. "War-approved" seed potatoes will have a basic maximum price of 50 cents per 100 pounds above the price of tablestock potatoes.

THE TRUTH about Water-Mixed Paints

There have been so many so-called water-mixed paints introduced recently, and so little information offered regarding their stability and comparative merits, that The Glidden Company offers the following answers to specific questions in the public's mind.

Are Water-Mixed Paints a Wartime Emergency Product? Definitely not. For example SPRED, Glidden's own water-mix paint formula, was in development four years before Pearl Harbor. It is a new paint invention—the fore-runner of a whole series of new style paints Glidden will introduce after the war.

Is the Water used as a Substitute for Oil? No. SPRED contains the same kind of pigments and oils as old fashioned wall paint... but in SPRED the oils are in emulsion, requiring no turpentine or thinners. The water used in mixing SPRED acts only as the "vehicle" or lubricant—one of the big reasons it is easier to paint with SPRED.

Aren't all Water-Mixed Paints about Alike? Again the answer is NO. SPRED is the only washable water-mixed paint made from soy beans.

How Does SPRED Differ? SPRED is an "homogenized" paint in which the emulsion of oil particles floats on a "vehicle" of water.

Are SPRED Colors Unusual? Yes. Because Glidden has its own color-manufacturing facilities, SPRED is offered in an exclusive range of exceptionally clear, beautiful, pastel tones.

Is SPRED Economical? Yes. One gallon of SPRED mixed with one-half gallon of water makes six quarts of rich, full-bodied paint—enough for an average room. Yet one gallon of SPRED costs
